Carter's face reflected different moods at press conference.

Carter chides slow Senate

Washington (AP) — President Carter, chiding the Senate for dismantling his energy program and delaying a final vote, warned on Thursday that "with every passing day our energy problems become more severe."

"The American people are expecting the Congress to pass a national energy plan," Carter said in a news conference statement aimed at the Senate as much as at his national television audience.

While the Senate continued its battle over deregulation of natural gas prices, Carter reiterated his opposition to removing the price controls and said "no interest group or organization can be satisfied with every part of our plan."

He said the Senate has been under "tremendous pressure" from lobbyists and "has its own reputation to protect" in passing strong energy legislation.

The President also said "reasonable progress has been made" toward a new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, but "an immediate agreement is not in prospect."

He said Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev has a "standing invitation" to visit the United States and that in the rotation of U.S.-Soviet summits, it is the United States' turn to play host.

The Bert Lance case, on which Carter spoke exclusively at his news conference following Lance's resignation as budget director eight days ago, was the subject of only one question.

The President said he never knew in 1976 that the Justice Department was investigating Lance's bank overdraft problems. But he said it would have made no difference in his decision to appoint Lance to direct the Office of Management and Budget.

On other matters, the President said:

— Arabs and Israelis "are making some progress" in their search for a Middle East peace and the United States would be ready to begin discussions with the Palestine Liberation Organization only if and when the group accepts the right of Israel to exist.

— The blame for layoffs in the steel industry cannot be placed on imports. He said the industry was having problems meeting environmental standards and that "when the growth rate drops to 6 per cent, there just aren't as many orders for steel."

— He has not consulted with Attorney General Griffin Bell on the possible prosecution of Richard Helms, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, on perjury charges. He said Bell would report to him and make a recommendation "fairly soon" on whether to seek an indictment of Helms based on Senate testimony in 1973.

— Republicans have helped him in some areas more than his own party, and singled out GOP support for his opposition to statutory restrictions on the independence of the World Bank.

— Vice President Walter F. Mondale meets with him more than all his staff members combined and "there are no aspects of the job as President that are not shared by the vice president."

"There's no one who would approach him in his importance to me, his closeness to me, and his ability to carry out an assignment for me with my complete trust," Carter said.

Carter said oil and gas company profits would exceed $430 million this year and he did not accept the industry's argument that incentives must be provided for wells already drilled.

He called his proposed tax on fuel-inefficient cars a "crucial" element of his energy package and said large industrial users of electricity must be persuaded through revised rate structures to eliminate wasteful practices.

Unless the crude oil tax in the administration's program is passed, Carter said, "we will continue to subsidize . . . imports of oil."

He continued to press for rebates to consumers from any tax imposed on crude oil, suggesting that such returns would be the "fair and equitable way."

"The thing that I don't want to do is to take that money from the American consumer . . . and give it as a reward to the oil companies," Carter said.

However, he said he would consider using it for mass transit or home insulation subsidies.

Defense plants' sale proposed

Washington (UPI) — Massive defense cost overruns — now taken for granted by government and industry alike — are not necessary, the chairman of Northrop Corp. told Congress Thursday.

The official, Thomas V. Jones, also told the Joint Committee on Defense Production that all government defense plants should be offered for sale to private industry.

"What is missing," Jones said, "is enforced discipline in the bugetary process."

Whip cracks again on child porno

Washington (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee Thursday unanimously approved legislation to crack down on pornography featuring children.

The measure is somewhat less restrictive than one the House passed by a wide margin Monday, but is more likely to win final congressional approval.

The committee bill, a revision of the Mann Act prohibiting interstate transportation of women for immoral purposes, would punish parents, guardians or producers involved in turning out pornographic material involving boys or girls under age 16.

GOP to form treaty stand

New Orleans (UPI) — Convinced that the Republican National Committee strongly opposes the administration's Panama Canal treaties, chairman William Brock looked Thursday for a way to have the party to speak out without cracking the plaster over its 1976 Ford-Reagan split.

Brock told reporters "generally, this party is opposed to the treaty," and predicted "we will have a resolution" opposing the pact at Friday's GOP National Committee meeting.

Cholera reaches epidemic level

Tehran, Iran (UPI) — Iran Thursday admitted a "cholera type" disease has reached epidemic proportions in the Tehran area, afflicting nearly 1,500 persons and killing 47.

Lunch plans cause 'heartburn'

New York (AP) — Reports that President Carter plans to limit the tax deduction for business lunches seems to be creating a mild case of heartburn in some business quarters Thursday, but not all disagree with the proposal.

"I tend to get the feeling that it's personal (Carter's) antipathy to the three-martini lunch and that's hardly a reason for going into this," said a spokesman for the National Restaurant Association.

But, declared the manager of the New York Hilton Hotel: "The three-martini lunch is an absolute myth."

Educators: All factions must be heard

By Nancy Hicks
Star Staff Writer

"School administrators should begin with the assumption that there is no lunatic fringe," said Frances R. Link, senior associate with the Washington, D.C.-based Curriculum Development Associates.

"Every concern is a legitimate concern and is worth listening to," said Link, whose firm published the controversial Man, A Course of Study (MACOS), a social science course used by some Lincoln schools.

But school administrators must also know when the concern is indeed a community concern.

"I am not naive enough to think there aren't organized groups that have a primary focus of stirring up concerns," Ms. Link said.

Ms. Link and two other educators, who have been in the eye of national storms over controversial school courses, are in Lincoln to participate in a Friday seminar called "Community Involvement in Educational Decision-Making: Cooperation or Confrontation?"

Other participants in the conference, sponsored by the Nebraska Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, are Dr. Ken Underwood, who was superintendent during the Kanawha County, W. Va., book battle and Dr. J. Arch Phillips, a Kent State University specialist in the policies of decision making.

There is a difference between rational discussion and emotional confrontation, the three said during a Thursday interview.

Many of the dissenting parent groups aren't asking to write the materials, Ms. Link said. But the unresolved question, she said, is "what is the community or parent role in curriculum development?"

And the problem usually comes when one segment wants to take over and have it "their way or no way."

It is entirely possible that some of these groups are not even going to choose to participate in the decision making process when they have to come to grips with rational discourse, Phillips said.

Educators must realize that the school system is a political institution, must intentionally involve all segments of the community in decision making and should continuously educate the community itself, the three said.

"One problem that educators have is that they are fairly naive politically," Phillips said. "They need to know the relationship between the schools and other social institutions."

To find out about their community, "superintendents must become political beings," Ms. Link said. "That may mean attending a great number of different meetings than the local Lion's Club," she said.

Administrators also need to work closely with building principals and teachers, who are often the ones who best know the community, she said.

"They really know who influences whom, whom to call if you want a meeting to come off," she said.

In the process superintendents may also find out more about the pulse of the community. "I have a feeling that many teachers are back to the basics themselves," Ms. Link said.

Schools need to actively seek out participation, Ms. Link said. Generally, only one segment of parents comes to meetings or gets involved, she said, adding that those interested in the community must be identified and personally asked to participate.

"Reach out and say we really want you," she said.

Schools could also start at the grass roots level to bring trust back, suggested Ms. Link. Too long have schools said, "let us teach them."

"That's what we do best — teaching," said Ms. Link who suggested that schools could offer classes to teach parents how to teach their children.

Educating the community about curriculum and changes is also important, the three said.

The community fears what it doesn't know," Ms. Link said. "We rarely have a plan to educate the community about education . . . We're not talking about ourselves, not educating about the innovations and changes."

This fear works both ways, according to Underwood who said that superintendents also have to overcome their fear of the public.

And this fear may stem from not knowing the public or "not permitting the public to know us," he said.

Dworak favors control by state

Associated Press

Columbus Sen. Donald Dworak advocated on Thursday the removal of mentally handicapped students from local school district programs in favor of the state assuming responsibility for their education and training.

"I don't see anything wrong with pulling the mentally handicapped out of the local school districts and making that a state responsibility," Dworak said at a legislative hearing.

"We seem to be getting cries from the local school districts that costs are getting away from them because of this program," he said.

Dworak indicated he is for local control when local money is involved, but state control in situations involving state money.

The hearing was held by a subcommittee formed from members of the Unicameral's Appropriations and Public Health and Welfare committees. It concerned Legislative Resolution 62, which Dworak sponsored to study mental health, mental retardation and related funding.

On hand were Jack Cleavenger, director of the Department of Public Institutions; Eldin Ehrlich, director of the Welfare Department, and Anne Campbell, state education commissioner.

Cleavenger and Campbell indicated some heightened state control over planning might be in order in relation to the mental health-mental retardation and alcoholism service delivery regions.

Ehrlich was wary of directly commenting on such an increased state role proposal. He offered Dworak an analysis of the background and philosophy that led to current funding methods, saying equal education and training opportunities were the basics of the philosophy.

"Is equal opportunity spending $50,000 a year for one youngster and $1,500 a year for another?" asked Dworak.

Ehrlich said the end result was the goal involved in equal opportunity, and he differentiated between equal opportunity and equal resource allocation.

O'Donnell may run for 1st District seat

Associated Press

Democratic National Committeeman Allen O'Donnell says he is "strongly leaning towards" running for Congress in the 1st District.

O'Donnell commented in a Thursday interview from his home in Wayne, saying he thought the governor's race may "shape up into a contest" between Democratic Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan and U.S. Rep. Charles Thone, who is leaving the 1st District seat to seek the Republican nod.

"From this distance I see a possible repeat of a Zorinsky-McCollister race," O'Donnell said, referring to Democratic Sen. Edward Zorinsky's victory over former GOP Rep. John Y. McCollister last year.

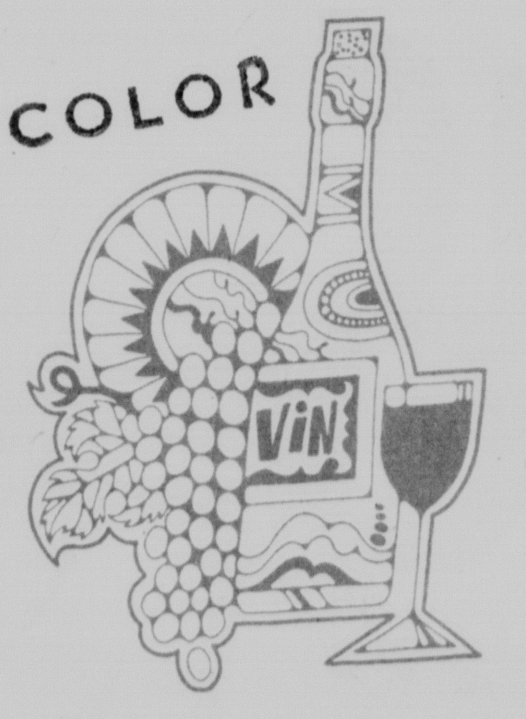
"Jerry Whelan is probably the best trained man in this state to be governor because he has been training for it for four years," O'Donnell said. "But any Democrat has to admit that Charley Thone is very popular in this state."

O'Donnell noted that Thone will have opposition in the Republican primary, but said it is possible Whelan will be unopposed on the Democratic side.

"As for me running for Congress I am still holding to the time schedule that I will not make up my mind until after Christmas.

"I have had a great amount of encouragement to run among Democrats in the 1st Congressional District and I would be less than honest if I did not admit that, with Charley Thone out of the race I am strongly leaning towards running," O'Donnell said.

"Now that Thone is out of the race I assume that both parties . . . will have tough primaries," he concluded.



French claret gets $14,450

London (AP) — The world record auction price for a bottle of wine, $14,450, was paid Thursday by Washington, D.C., wine merchant Addy Bassin.

He told reporters he bought the bottle of 1806 French Chateau Lafite claret for a "wealthy and influential" man who lives in Washington, D.C., and I will not tell you who he is."

The seller also remained anonymous. The catalogue simply said the bottle was "the property of a gentleman."

Bassin, a noted buyer of fine wines in the United States and Europe, said he flew to London specially for the sale after Christie's auction house sent him a catalogue describing the precious bottle as "one of the rarest wines in the world."

He said his unnamed client had instructed him, "Buy it."

Under their auction terms, Christie's will charge the unnamed seller a commission of 10% of the auction price.

Christie's said the price topped the previous wine auction record of $14,200 paid by another American buyer in New Orleans, La., in May last year for the only other similar bottle of Lafite claret.

Bassin is in partnership with his wife, Ruth, at MacArthur's Liquor Store at 4877 MacArthur Blvd., Washington.

Besieged by reporters wanting to know who will drink the claret, when, where and in celebration of what great occasion, Bassin indicated the bottle might never be opened.

He said: "Why does he (his client) want it at that price? Well, why does a man want a Rembrandt, or a stamp printed upside down, or a coin minted off-center? He wants to own it, to look at it."

He said his client is a "very distinguished and wealthy customer, a wine-drinker, who deals in my store. He has lots of other wine."

Striking teachers jailed indefinitely

Dedham, Mass. (AP) — Two judges systematically began locking up more striking school teachers in the mill town of Franklin on Thursday for refusing to return to their classrooms.

The teachers, some smiling while others sobbed, were taken away by sheriff's deputies to begin serving time in county jails where they will join 34 other teachers who have been locked up for a week.

The judges sent 29 teachers to jail for indefinite periods Thursday after they refused to return to their classrooms. Another 71 teachers are scheduled to appear in court Friday.

The jailings follow an order by the judge for the teachers to return to work or face contempt of court charges.

About 200 of the school system's 286 teachers are still taking part in the walkout, which began 15 days ago over wages and seniority. All face jail if they don't quit their strike.

Franklin, located close to the Massachusetts-Rhode Island border 30 miles south of Boston, has been trying to maintain its daily school system. Substitute teachers are in many classrooms, but student attendance is running below 75%. The schools admit that many students appear at their home rooms, then leave.

"I hope you don't confuse what you are doing with the great acts of civil disobedience that led to the creation of this country," said Judge John P. Sullivan, as he jailed 20 of the teachers. "That would be patent deception."

The other superior court judge in the case, John M. Greaney, who sentenced the 34 teachers jailed last Friday, said all the teachers still on strike would be locked up by Monday.

He also said that unless the teachers' union reached agreement with the Franklin School Committee over the weekend, he will order the negotiations stopped.

"This means there can be no progress until the strike ends," Greaney said.

Strikes by public employes are illegal under state law.

Prior to the jailings, the teachers complained bitterly that the school committee had not bargained in good faith. Some said they faced imprisonment as a matter of conscience.

"We need the right to bargain collectively," said Steven Gonsalves, 25, a math teacher. "They haven't been doing that and I'm insulted. You have to be willing to make sacrifices if you stand up for what you want. It's the only way I can live with myself."

Tunde Gombas-Haner, 31, an English teacher, said, "I am willing to go to jail for the sake of quality education, which we can't have unless there is fair bargaining. I'm a little worried but not afraid. I will stay there until we have a fair contract."

Both sides agree that one of the toughest issues is seniority. The school committee wants the right to lay off whomever it chooses if the need arises. The union wants teachers to be laid off on the basis of length of service in the school system.

The teachers voted to reject the school committee's latest offer on Wednesday night. It would have given the school committee the right to choose who would be let go and would have raised the teachers' pay by 5.5% this year and next year and between 5% and 6% in the third year. The average teacher in the district now makes about $12,000 with pay levels starting at $9,200.

Franklin, with 20,000 residents, has 11 schools and 5,000 students affected by the strike.

Filibuster continues as compromise fails

Washington (AP) — The Senate's effort to snap a two-week deadlock on natural gas pricing apparently collapsed Thursday night and preparations began for a possible second all-night session.

After voting to begin considering a major compromise on whether to lift federal price controls on natural gas, the Senate bogged down in bitter parliamentary bickering.

Both opponents and proponents of gas deregulation took actions blocking votes on the compromise, dashing hopes of Senate leaders that the intensive two-day effort had succeeded.

Senate employes wheeled in cots to rooms off the Senate floor in preparation for a possible second all-night session in three days.

The final vote on the critical natural gas issue is expected to be extremely close.

"I'm not going to be part of a steamroller and I'm not going to let it roll over me," said Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, decrying methods used to prevent further filibusters.

Muskie referred to efforts by Sen. Russell Long, D-La., a firm supporter of deregulation, to get assurance from two liberal Democratic senators that they would not repeat a filibuster which kept the Senate in session for 37 hours Tuesday and Wednesday.

But Sens. Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio and James Abourezk of South Dakota refused, Long said. And then he invoked a parliamentary tactic designed to dispose of more than 400 amendments introduced by the filibuster leaders.

The tactic worked because the Senate earlier had approved by voice vote a parliamentary maneuver intended to move the natural gas issue closer to a vote.

"I want to arrive at a situation where either both sides have the right to filibuster or neither side has the right to filibuster," Long said heatedly.

He said he was willing to fight either "by the rules of the Marquis of Queensbury or the rules of tooth and nail," but that both sides should play by the same rules.

The first critical test vote was expected to come on a deregulation plan urged by Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., and James B. Pearson, R-Kan.

If that should fail, the Senate would move to a compromise worked out by Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee.

Aides to Bentsen, a leading advocate for ending all federal controls on natural gas prices, conceded that the vote on the new compromise would be close. "There are 8 or 10 fenct sitters we're watching very closely," said one.

Several hours before the vote, Abourezk and Metzenbaum announced they would support the Jackson compromise.

Under the compromise plan, the current $1.46 lid on natural gas prices would rise to $2.03 immediately and would rise even higher if inflation continues. Carter had originally proposed a $1.75 price ceiling.

The compromise also would allow producers to charge the higher price for newly-discovered gas pumped from a well drilled after last Jan. 1, whether it comes from an old or a new reservoir.

Senate body okays higher debt ceiling

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee Thursday approved an increase to $754 billion in the national debt ceiling for the next six months.

The current $700 billion ceiling expires Friday midnight. Although the government can continue to function at least temporarily without borrowing funds, a lengthy delay would leave it unable to pay bills or salaries.

The House Wednesday passed a one-year increase in the ceiling to $773 billion.

If the Senate approves its committee bill, the House then could either accept or reject the senate version or call for a conference committee to work out differences.

But Finance Committee Chairman Russell Long, D-Ia., said he hoped the House would accept the Senate version, "time being of the essence."

Abortion policy still unsettled

Washington (AP) — Members of a House and Senate conference committee failed again Thursday to agree on a government abortion policy, but said their impasse will not cut off federal welfare benefits for the nation's poor.

After an acrimonious, three-hour session, committee members agreed to try again on Monday to decide when the government should pay for abortions for poor women.

While the dispute will not affect payments for most federal social service programs, it may mean a reduced paycheck for thousands of federal bureaucrats unless it is resolved by Oct. 18.

The controversy over federal funding of abortions for poor women is tied to legislation providing $60.2 billion for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

The current funding authorization for the two departments expires on Friday, and approval of operating money for next year has been delayed in Congress by the abortion dispute.

The pending amendment before the conference committee is being offered by Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash. It would permit government-funded abortions where a woman's life is endangered by a full-term pregnancy, in cases of rape or incest "or if the mother or fetus would suffer serious, permanent health damage."

House members asked for time to study the proposal before voting on whether to accept it and take it to the full House for a vote.

The position taken by the Senate maintains that the government should pay for abortions in cases of rape, incest or where "medically necessary," a phrase detractors say is vague enough to allow abortions under almost any circumstances.

The House insists that the government should fund abortions only when a woman's life would be jeopardized by a full-term pregnancy.

Each side has rejected the other's position. The House voted Tuesday against accepting the Senate proposal.

Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., suggested at the conference committee meeting that if House members accept the Senate proposal, it should be modified to require that victims of rape report the crime before they receive federal assistance for an abortion.

Meanwhile, officials at various government agencies and the congressional appropriations committees said Thursday spending on welfare programs can proceed in anticipation of future funding.

As a result, persons will continue receiving government checks from programs such as Aid to Families with Dependent Children and Supplemental Security Income for the aged, blind and disabled.

Money for Social Security is not involved in the legislation, and benefits under that program are not affected.

But employes at the departments of Labor and HEW, as well as at other agencies, may get only one week's pay instead of two on Oct. 18.

HEW employes 132,500 persons, and there are about 16,300 workers at the Labor Department.

The next pay check for them, distributed on Tuesday, is for two weeks of work in September. The Oct. 18 check ordinarily would be for the final week in September and the first week in October. But unless Congress passes new legislation, salaries can be paid only through Sept. 30.

Medicaid paid for about 300,000 abortions last year at a cost of $50 million. About one-third of the abortions were performed on teen-agers.

Economic index increase encouraging, not decisive

Washington (AP) — The U.S. economic outlook brightened Thursday when the government's index of economic indicators for August suddenly jumped eight-tenths of 1 per cent.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said the one-month increase, although not decisive, indicated the economy is moving ahead on schedule.

After a strong winter, the index had declined two-tenths of 1 per cent in both May and June before rising two-tenths in July, the Commerce Department said.

Economists were particularly encouraged in the August report by an increase of three-tenths of 1 per cent in contracts and orders for new plants and equipment. This indicator, which shows that businesses are spending money on factories, often is a sign of confidence in the economy.

Economists have said consumer spending may have peaked and that new growth may depend on new plants and equipment.

Despite the brighter outlook, several clouds remained on the horizon. Blumenthal said the nation's trade deficit probably will total $25 billion to $30 billion this year and that another huge deficit is expected in 1978.

And although factory spending can lead to more jobs, the newest report on the economic indicators was not particularly encouraging for workers. The layoff rate remained unchanged and the average work week declined for the third month in a row, to 40.1 hours.

The Carter administration wants the economy to grow at least at a rate of 5 per cent a year through 1978. The midsummer lag in the indicators and other events caused some fears that the growth rate would fall below the target and lead to higher unemployment.

Blumenthal said at a news conference Thursday that next year "we are still shooting for, and we think we will achieve, something close to 5 per cent."

But he said if the economy falls short of the targets "there is enough time to take further actions to reach the 5 per cent point." In the past, such actions often have been tax reductions or new government spending on jobs.

The index of leading indicators, which is designed to show future economic trends, now stands at 131.3, which means the economy is 31.3 per cent more active than it was in the base period of 1967.

Besides plant and equipment spending, other indicators contributing to the August increase were liquid assets, higher prices for raw materials, new factory orders, the money supply, and particularly a three-tenths of 1 per cent increase in building permits.

Declining were the average work week, vendor performance and stock prices.

The eight-tenths increase was the largest since a 1.9 per cent rise in March, but fell far short of the 3.1 per cent rise in June 1975, which signaled the end of the 1974-75 recession.

Blumenthal indicated the continuing trade deficit could result in moves to restrict imports from Japan, which is expected to have a trade surplus this year of about $15 billion, or about half of the U.S. deficit.

"Unless it (the Japanese surplus) is corrected as quickly as possible, the problem of protectionist pressures in many countries, including our own, may become very large and I think justifiably so," he said.

Carter signs farm bill with food stamp reforms

Washington (UPI) — President Carter Thursday signed a wide-ranging $10.5 billion farm bill he once threatened to veto as too expensive but finally accepted to get food stamp reforms.

Signing the omnibus bill in the White House Rose Garden, the President said, "In the last 40 years there never has been such a far-reaching and important piece of legislation passed relating to American agriculture."

In return for accepting crop supports higher than he wanted, Carter won reforms which will bring an estimated 3 million new recipients into the $5.6 billion food stamp program.

The food stamp changes will bring an additional 3 million persons into the program by dropping the requirement participants first buy stamps for cash. Tighter eligibility requirements are expected to weed out 0.5 million of the current 16.2 million participants.

The food stamp program is extended for four years.

Carter said the bill represented a "great step forward" in overhauling the stamp program, and "a giant step toward tying target prices to production costs," as well as providing for keeping most grain reserves under farmers' control.

"I have to admit the bill is about $300 million more costly than I would have preferred to see. But I think the investment is a good one," he said.

Members of both parties, including his past political opponents Sens. Robert Dole, R-Kan., and George McGovern, D-S.D., attended the signing ceremony.

Carter initially threatened to veto the legislation as too costly but accepted the final compromise, hammered out in a House-Senate conference committee and passed by both houses earlier this month.

The bill also authorizes a test in 14 areas of a "workfare" program under which some able-bodied stamp recipients would have to earn their free stamps by working on public service jobs.

Target prices for the 1977 wheat crop jump to $2.90 a bushel while the loan rate goes to $2.25 a bushel. This is expected to trigger a record $1.2 billion in support payments for this year's wheat crop.

The corn target price and loan rate will be $2 a bushel for this year's crop, with more modest increases in price and income support rates for other feed grains, rice and cotton.

The target price for farmers' crops is activated only if the market price for a commodity slips below the specified level.

The farm programs in the legislation are expected to cost the government no more than $4.4 billion a year through 1981. But actual spending could be higher if, for instance, good weather brought bumper crops and hence lowered market prices.

Other provisions call for expanded research in solar energy and human nutrition and the "Food for Peace" foreign aid program.

'Big Macs' now feed Japanese

Des Moines, Iowa (UPI) — For Japanese consumers, raw fish is out and McDonald's is in, a Japanese diplomat said Thursday.

Counsel General Kiyoshi Sumiya told the World Trade Council of Iowa a major shift has taken place in the standard Japanese diet that is spurning rapid development of carry-out restaurants.

He said his people are eating more and more fried chicken, hamburgers and other "delicacies" that can be found at fast food outlets.

"The volume of our trade in commodities has increased because Japanese consumers have steadily shifted toward a western style diet," he said. "Our people also are developing a taste for your fast food, with McDonald's, Colonel Sanders, Pizza Hut and others doing a thriving business."

The dietary changes, Sumiya said, are evidenced by the dramatic increase in Japan's beef and pork imports from the United States. For 1976, he said beef imports rose 214% and U.S. sales of pork increased three-fold.

He credited Iowa — the nation's top pork-producing state — with being a major beneficiary of the change, but added, "It took the United States to bring Pizza Hut and Big Mac to Japan."

The area that holds a nearly unlimited potential for U.S. exploitation, he said, is fast food, adding most Japanese are ready and willing to make the switch from their traditional foods to all American fast foods.

"We are a willing and growing market for your goods and services," Sumiya said. "In food service, our people enjoy hamburgers under the Golden Arches at McDonald's, I am told it's finger-lickin' good in Japan with Colonel Sanders and soon there will be more Denny's Restaurants in Japan than there are in California."

What do Xerox and IBM II Copiers have most in common?

Both are most commonly replaced with the Savin 780.

It has become a common occurrence for the Savin 780 plain paper copier to replace both Xerox and IBM II copiers.

People have discovered that the Savin 780 is a most uncommon copier. Firstly, it's the most reliable machine on the market—it's practically jam proof. Half of all paper jams are caused by long twisting paper paths. In some Xerox machines, for example, a copy twists and turns over four feet—often ending up somewhere in the middle. In our machine, a copy moves a mere 12 inches from storage cassette to reproduction through the simplest paper path possible. Obviously, the less distance a copy has to travel, the greater the chances are that it will survive the trip.

Our Copies Not Only Keep Coming Out—They Keep Coming Out Better.

The Savin 780 has a mind. An electronic brain reads every original first, then automatically makes whatever adjustment it thinks necessary to give a clean, clear, needle sharp copy every time, regardless of the original. We also copy on to two sides. The IBM II and the Xerox copiers are brainless copiers— they treat everything the same. Secondly, the IBM II can't copy on to both sides.

To copy books, periodicals and other oversize originals—simply lift the 780's document feed attachment and push the print button.

Why Pay More For The Price Of Fame?

Unquestionably their names alone have given Xerox and IBM premium postions in the business office. The real question, now, is how much of a premium do you want to pay to do business with them. The Savin 780 copier is a lot more copier for a lot less money.

Contact us for a demonstration—we'll prove the point by doing it right alongside your current copier.

'Good life' boast more than hot air

"Nebraska — the good life" is more than just a slogan. The truth of it is illustrated again in a study which shows that people here are happier in general than people in the nation as a whole. The local study results were matched with the results of a national study to produce the contrast.

In surveying some 1,800 Nebraskans, it was found that a higher percentage of them were satisfied with such things as their jobs, housing, schools and neighborhoods as was the case nationwide. A higher percentage of people here considered themselves "very happy" and a smaller percentage "not too happy" as compared to Americans living elsewhere.

"We speculate that the quality of life in Nebraska really is better," said one of the men who conducted the survey.

The findings that Nebraskans are happier and more satisfied with their life coincide with results of another survey which found Lincoln first and Omaha fourth in a most livable city study of 100 American metropolitan areas.

Skeptics will point out that the happiness survey and the livable city survey were both conducted by Nebraskans — the former by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Bureau of Sociological Research and the latter by a University of Nebraska-Omaha survey team.

Such survey results are assailed as self-serving back-patting. Well, appearances can't be helped.

But the veracity of the studies has not been successfully challenged.

When you get down to the basics, life is pretty good in Nebraska.

Until someone proves that it just ain't so, we'll accept the surveys as gospel, no matter who conducted them.

UMA future looks brighter

If the University of Mid America (UMA) can survive its infancy, it should live a long and happy life, as once-undernourished children often do.

This concept of taking higher education to the people through mass media, pioneered here at the University of Nebraska, has received a new lease on life after reports of its imminent death the last two or three years proved to be exaggerated.

This year UMA got a little less than it wanted but more than it was initially promised in the way of grant money from its funding sources. The premier source, the National Institute of Education, raised its earlier $1.6 million funding promise to $2.1 million for fiscal 1978 to support the nine-state entity which uses newspapers, television and radio to take adult education classwork into the homes. The rest of the $2.5 million-plus budget comes from the Ford Foundation and many smaller grants.

The emphasis during the coming year will be on curriculum development and the "lofty, ultimate goal," says unpaid President D. B. Varner the father of UMA, is to provide member universities a way to offer students a degree while staying at home.

Hopes are really raised this year with NIE's written commitment for two more years of funding plus two additional years of optional funding.

"I think we've passed through the critical period," Varner says. "With this level of funding and this commitment, the future looks extremely bright."

It appears as if the dedication and resourcefulness of those committed to the UMA mission are beginning to pay off.

It is a welcome development and a source of pride for Nebraskans.

Curtis attack flops

As we tune in to Chapter Twelve of "Marshal Short," we find Sen. Carl Curtis angrily responding to charges by Gov. Jim Exon that Curtis' charges against Exon are "unmitigated lies."

"I don't like to be called an unmitigated liar, or any other kind of liar, when I told the absolute truth as to what happened," Curtis said.

If Curtis doesn't like it, there is something he can do about it. He can offer proof.

Curtis has charged, among other things, that Exon improperly used his influence in trying to obtain favorable background reports for U.S. Marshal candidate Clive Short and in trying to land the nomination for Short. These are the charges Exon has branded as lies.

Since Curtis has charged Exon, the burden is on the senator to substantiate the truthfulness of what he says.

If Curtis chooses to leave such careless charges undocumented, no one can be blamed for thinking them untruthful.

The question now is, how much more mileage does Curtis think he can squeeze out of his accusations before the situation boomerangs?

An outing down Kansas-way

By LaVerna Hassler

Patchwork Prairie Country

"Ho-hum," said I to The Farmer.

"Six o'clock comes early in the morning."

"Six o'clock always comes early in the morning," he answered.

"It seems earlier. Perhaps getting home at one o'clock this morning has something to do with it," I tried to rationalize while at the same time trying to stifle another yawn.

Our stint away from the farm began with a delightful weekend spent in Lawrence and Overland Park, Kansas. We were meeting with the tour group whom we joined last fall going to the East Coast. At the time of parting, one of the ladies invited the group to her home in Overland Park for a get-together.

Now, when you attempt to get together people from Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa and Missouri, that's a get-together of another kind.

"Come early and stay late," was the invitation for Sunday's picnic.

"How early is early?" asked one of the group via the telephone.

"Any time after eight o'clock Sunday morning," came the reply.

Now, that's what I call an "invite"!

Amid happy chatter and laughter, fried chicken and ham, potato salad, jello salads, casseroles and various breads, not to mention pies and cakes, we managed to live through the "gorge-us," fun-filled day.

Just before parting, lest anyone had developed hunger pangs, a replay of the above dinner was partaken of again, topped off the ice cream.

The womenfolk of the group take pride in the fact that all are such fine cooks. We smile when we say that. In fact it brought a lusty laugh when one of the gals remarked," I don't know how we could be so lucky as to have only gourmet cooks in our group." Despite our own ability to pat ourselves on the back, the simple truth is we all can turn out food fit for a king. We don't mind spreading the word around.

Now, mind you before The Farmer and I had shared the Sunday fun-fest, we had been guests of two traveling friends in Lawrence, Kansas, and had royally feasted. These royal feasts took place in plush dining clubs, with delicious and cozy atmosphere. Not only did we enjoy the food but we were taken on an all-day tour of the area.

The devastation due to the recent flood in Kansas City was unbelievable. Homes with carpets drying in the sun, sofas and household furnishings in front yards while the homes were being cleaned and racks of garments from department stores wheeled on the sidewalks concerned us. But the spirit of the people is similar all across our country for they were making ready to go back to their daily lives.

There was also a tour of the campus of Kansas University and Haskell Indian College. This junior college of American Indian studies includes the enrollment of twenty different Indian tribes. There was Clinton Dam, the new shopping area at Overland Park and new housing areas to see.

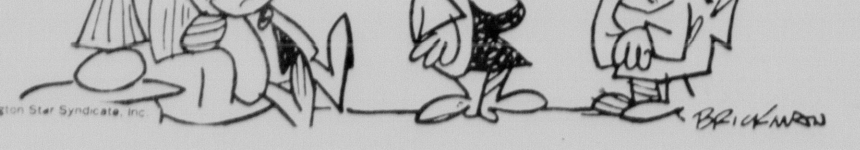
Nary a stone was left unturned. All this prior to the really big event, beginning any time after eight. Small wonder I thought, "All this and heaven, too" as our company parted.

Perhaps the richest of life's rewards is gained from having and making new friends. It is the human touch that counts in the world, the quiet conversation, the laughter and understanding.

Some may think shelter is the essence of living but I saw in the flood disaster of Kansas City that it was the people, the friends banding together that made life go on anew. Shelter is gone when the night is over but friends live in our hearts always. Some think bread is of total importance but bread lasts but a day. Wine is but a sip, a rose but a fleeting moment of beauty and attar.

I am not an advocate of no bread, nor shelter, wine nor roses but friends make the bread so wholesome and the roses smell twice as fragrant.

HE'S RUN OUT OF NOSTALGIA —



The ladies do not take divorce law lightly

Today's Mail

Always a tragedy

Lincoln, Neb.

I was separated for 13 years before I was divorced under the no-fault divorce set-up. During these 13 years, I raised our children alone. Divorce is a tragedy in all cases, not as Mr. Geier said, "a blessing to some and a curse to others."

Criminals are judged according to the degree of their crimes. There should be different divorce laws for the young career girl and the older, long-time-married woman.

OLIVIA NESS

Long-time marriages

Lincoln, Neb.

Mr. Geier is wrong about no-fault divorce settlements for the older home-makers who have never worked outside the home but have contributed their lifetimes and effort for the family. Also, I contributed inherited money to fix up my home. My alimony lasts seven years.

I had been a home-maker for 30 years when my husband got a no-fault divorce. He had planned this for at least two years. Now he lives like a king at the Country Club, while I live at the poverty level.

The no-fault divorce laws should be changed for long-time marriages.

MRS. F.

Mother-daughter talk

Lincoln, Neb.

Attorney Geier expressed it very well when he said: "No-fault divorce gives people the opportunity to get out of a marriage they didn't feel they could get out of before." He also said there are no legal standards for property division, that children of the marriage get $90 to $150 a month until age 19 (I think he over-estimated), that alimony payments are up to the judge, and that the Nebraska Supreme Court rules that pensions are not marital property.

In view of the above, I must urge my daughter not to marry because it is the most insecure career she could choose. Her husband can decide to leave her for another woman or for the least little whim, her children can have just partial support, her chances for collecting support are not positive, her children cannot be assured a college education, her property rights are up to the judge who may or may not consider her efforts in the home or her contribution from outside work. Alimony payments, if made at all (I understand only 12% of the people are awarded any alimony) will be low, paid for only a short time, often difficult to collect and constantly subject to change. No matter how hard she works or how long she is married, the Supreme Court of Nebraska has ruled her ineligible to share in her husband's pension. There are other adversities of financial condition not mentioned in the article such as insurance and health benefits. Also, she may end up on the welfare rolls hated by a society which often blames her and not her husband.

I must tell my daughter that her alternative is a career and if she wants equal pay and professional position, she must be extraordinarily more qualified than the average male and must be prepared to do battle with a great number of males (and females) who resent competitive, authoritative women.

The only hope that I can give her is that maybe, just maybe, this is a tough transitional period in which women may become real people — respected for their individuality, no matter which fields of endeavor they choose — home-makers, doctors, hair-dressers, etc. I must teach her to fight attitudinal changes without developing personal hatred for men — to convince her that though men are conditioned to think of females as sex partners, mothers and service workers, they eventually will be much happier with interesting, able, equal and uncowering women who can also be their friends.

My daughter should learn that women, unwittingly and in forgiveable innocence, have shared in the responsibility for this condition by pushing too quickly for early marriages, producing children without full sanction of their husbands, expecting full monetary care for themselves and their broods. Some women have thought of men as commodities, using sex as a way of manipulating, considering all other women adversaries.

Though my daughter's future battle for equality of sex may be tough (her greatest battles may be with women) if it's done in hatred and without the highest of moral intentions for both the sexes, it cannot succeed. Chances are she will not reap the benefits in her lifetime, but I pray she is willing to fearlessly and without anger confront the issue.

One solution

Lincoln, Neb.

The simple solution to the Panama Canal treaty is to give it to them, lock, stock and barrel, as of January 1, 1978, with no cash outlay after that, PROVIDING they take Puerto Rico with them.

Think of the money that would save.

Anthony Lewis

New York — Sympathetic public opinion in America has always been vital to Israel, and never more so than in her diplomatic near-isolation these days. The sympathy is natural: It is right that Americans should care about a country of shared ideals and so compelling a history. But the support should reflect not only human feelings but a realistic sense of Israel's long-term interests.

The question of American public attitudes is made acute by the growing possibility that the Geneva conference on the Middle East will be reconvened before the end of the year. That prospect emerges from Israel's agreement, albeit with prickly conditions, to a Palestinian presence at the conference. There is a momentum for Geneva.

Considering all the brickbats thrown at President Carter and Secretary of State Vance for their Middle East policy — the charges of muddling and amateurism — they could take considerable satisfaction in a Geneva meeting. But of course that would only be the beginning: of negotiation and of American responsibility. For everyone recognizes that only U.S. leadership has any chance of closing the still enormous distance between Israel and the Arabs on substantive issues.

That is where public opinion, its understanding and its steadiness will matter. It is no secret that American supporters of Israel have been extremely sensitive to any suggestion of U.S. pressure on Israel — sometimes more sensitive than the Israelis. President Carter has not yet applied any significant pressure. But when he has spoken aloud on something as evident as the necessity for a Palestinian homeland, he has been denounced as "provocative."

It is Menahem Begin, not Jimmy Carter, who has been provocative. Since becoming premier he has taken the unyielding position, at least publicly, that the West Bank territory occupied by Israel in 1967 is its by rights going back to the Bible. Until an ambiguous halt this week, he has allowed further Jewish settlements in the area. His minister of agriculture, Ariel Sharon, has produce a grandiose plan to settle two million Jews in the occupied territories.

Those positions are fantasies: dangerous fantasies. Ancient history is deeply meaningful as a source of Israel's vision, but it is entirely inadmissible as a definition in international law or diplomacy. What would happen to the peace of the world if every nation insisted on Biblical boundaries of its own scriptural equivalent?

The Begin government has suggested that the problem of the West Bank can be solved by improving the Arabs' social and economic conditions and giving them a degree of local autonomy. This is another fantasy. Paternalism, however beneficient, will not work there any more than it did for the French in Algeria. Even the most moderate Palestinians want to run their own society.

Americans who visit Israel often speak of the vulnerability of the country's pre-1967 waist: the narrow area between the Mediterranean and the West Bank. That is a fact, but it was also a condition of the compromise that allowed the creation of Israel in 1948 with world support. The world as it is today cannot accept unilateral boundary changes for reasons of perceived security.

In any case, territory is not security for Israel in light of modern weapons systems. Minor adjustments to the 1967 borders are imaginable. But can it really increase Israel's security to hold on to the West Bank and thus assure continuing hostility from the Arabs and disapproval from the rest of the world?

In our concern for Israel's survival, we tend to forget an important part of the dream that accompanied its creation and development. That was the dream of peace with its neighbors. Israelis and American supporters both envisioned a time when people with so much in common could live together, and Israel would no longer need to be an armed camp.

After the 1967 war, that vision of peace was the declared reason for holding on to the occupied territory. Apart from such particular areas as Jerusalem, the land would be held temporarily, it was said, as a lever to bring the Arabs to genuine peace. But now security is sought in territory, not peace.

The Arabs are talking of peace now in terms that would have been regarded as astounding in 1967. Secretary Vance came back from his last Middle East tour with undertakings by the neighboring Arab states to conclude peace treaties with Israel. The foreign minister of Egypt, Ismail Fahmy, said the other day that "the Arab countries are ready for the first time to accept Israel as a Middle Eastern country to live in peace."

Words can deceive, and it is wise to be wary after the bloody history of Arab opposition to Israel's existence. But it is foolish to pretend that there has been no change in Arab attitudes. There has been a significant change.

Americans must remain committed to Israel, but not in the blinkered vision of survival in hostility. The aim is a stable relationship with its neighbors, and that requires the mutual abandonment of extravagant claims. We help Israel by supporting American leaders when they point out the price of fantasy.

If it moves, it's my lunch

By Roger Simon
Chicago Sun-Times Writer

Chicago — So you still want to be a reporter, huh, kid? You think it's all roses and champagne and hounding presidents from office? Well, it's not. It's tough. Darn tough. Listen to this:

It was a day like any other. I was writing about truth and justice. My snap-brim fedora sat on my head like a squashed hen. My trench coat lay in a dirty heap on the floor. The trail of smoke from a burning stogie cast a shadow on my cruel smile.

The phone rang. I picked it up. "Your dime," I snarled.

It was a dame. It is always a dame. "I have a client," she said. "Mr. Burt Richmond. He would like to design your interior. He will come to your office and create a unique work space reflecting your personality and outlook. What is your current decor?"

I looked around the newsroom.

"We don't got a decor," I said. "We had a cat once, but it died."

The dame signed a sigh. "What does your newsroom look like?" she asked. "What is the scheme of decoration?"

I eyeballed the joint. "Early Locker Room," I said. Then I smiled my cruel smile.

"If it is possible, Mr. Richmond would like to visit your work environment," the dame said. "He has done interior design for IBM, NBC, Kraft, McDonald's, Playboy, Quaker Oats, ALCOA, Levi's, Mogen David and the City of East St. Louis."

"East St. Louis!" I said. "Boy, I wonder what it looked like before."

The next day, Burt Richmond showed up. He was smooth, real smooth. And a snappy dresser. His shoes matched. I met him in the hallway and took him into my "work environment."

"I have never been in your newsroom," he said, "but I am looking forward to . . OH MY LORD!"

I couldn't see what was wrong. Just a regular newsroom. About a hundred desks. People yelling and screaming, phones ringing, typewriters pounding and pieces of paper shooting around the ceiling on little conveyor belts. And, of course, Old Pete had fallen asleep on his sweet roll again.

"Where is your desk?" Richmond demanded.

"I think you're standing next to it," I said. "It's hard to tell. Don't get your sleeve in anything."

"This . . . this is extraordinary," he said. "You're packed together like cattle!"

"Moo," sez I. And then I smiled my cruel smile.

"Look at these typewriters," he said. "Nobody uses typewriters like this anymore. I would not be surprised to see people in green eyeshades and using quill pens. The first thing you need is acoustical floor covering."

"Huh?"

"A carpet," he explained. "It cuts down noise. Also, it is cheaper to vacuum than to wash and wax these floors."

"Wash and wax?" I said. "This is a newsroom, pal. Not the Betty Crocker test kitchen."

He nudged my chair with his foot. "I can't believe this," he said. "It doesn't even swivel."

"Roller Derby we ain't," I conceded.

He whipped out a sketch pad and started drawing like mad.

"What we need is individual work space for you people," he said. "Some partitions. Some banners from the ceiling, maybe. Some supergraphics. Lightning bolts. Clenched fist symbols. Superman logos."

I was beginning to like this guy.

"And those offices must go," he said, pointing to a row overlooking the Chicago River. "They must be moved from the windows. They block the light."

"Those are the editors' offices," I said, "And the editors have got to be by the windows. Otherwise, they couldn't see the bridges go up."

"No, no, no," he said. "We must break down the status thing. You protect the underdog, right?"

"Every dog I can find," I said.

"Then your work space must reflect that. And we must get some greenery, some plants."

"Wrong," I said. "Nothing can grow in this newsroom."

"That's not true," he said, pointing to some green stuff on my desk. "That is alive."

"That's my lunch," I said.

He began to sketch wildly. In a trice or two he had whipped up something that looked like the set of "Star Wars." It was beautiful. He drew in carpeting and little partitions and a plant and even a coat hook.

"How much?" I asked.

"$6.50," he said.

"Build it!" I yelled. "Build one for everybody."

"No, no," he said. "It's $6.50 for the coat hook. The whole thing would cost, ummmmm, about $464. Let's say $335 without the chair."

Well, kid, there went my dreams. So I'm going to tell you what I told him.

"Sure a new office would be nice," I said. "Real nice. So would apple pie and a pennant for the White Sox and world peace. But things aren't always that way, see?

"You may look in here and see garbage. I look in here and see my friends. Never forget, a newspaper is more than just broken-down typewriters and broken-down desks.

"It is broken-down people, too."

Mr. Richmond grew very quiet before he spoke. "And just what color would you like us to make the carpet," he asked.

"Blue to match my eyes," I said. And then I smiled my cruel smile.

Warm welcome staged in Peking

By John Roderick

Analysis

Tokyo (AP) — China's ardent, and sometimes frustrated, wooing of little Cambodia, begun seven years ago by that most urbane of suitors, the late Premier Chou En-lai, appears finally to have paid off.

The arrival Wednesday in Peking of a high-powered Cambodian government-Communist party delegation, headed by new Premier Pol Pot, has taken on more of the trappings of a love feast than of a state visit.

When the Chinese want to show their friendship for a valued friend, they turn out hundreds of schoolchildren and dance and music groups to welcome him at the airport. Wednesday's reception went far beyond that, judging from Chinese and other news reports reaching here from Peking.

Not only did most of the leadership, led by Chairman Hua Kuo-feng, show up to meet the delegation, but this was followed by a massive, noisy turnout of 100,000 in the capital's Tien An Men Square.

At a state banquet, both Pol Pot and Hua exceeded themselves in Old World politeness and praise. The Cambodian insisted on addressing Hua and all four of the Chinese party vice chairmen as "respected and beloved," an exuberance seldom matched by other visitors.

But what seemed to confirm that China's long-term policy has succeeded was Pol Pot's declaration that his country had, for the past two years, imitated China — the sincerest compliment of all.

More exactly, he said, "in the concrete revolutionary struggle of our country, we have creatively and successfully applied Mao Tse-tung thought, from the time we had only empty hands down to April 17, 1975" — the day the Cambodian Communists, who now call their country Democratic Kampuchea, defeated the U.S.-backed regime in Phnom Penh.

Associated Press

Cambodian Premier Pol Pot greeted by Chinese officials.

Chou En-lai's motives in casting China's lot with the Cambodian rebels in 1970 were mixed. He needed it to achieve a balance with Vietnam in the region and to discourage Soviet influence in Southeast Asia.

Pol Pot left little doubt at the dinner about the new Kampuchea government's feelings toward Moscow. Echoing the Chinese line, he castigated the Soviet "expansionists," along with imperialists and reactionaries, for trying to "arrest the impetus of the people's struggle."

It was the first visit by a Communist Cambodian delegation to China since 1975. But the central figure of that last visit, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, was never mentioned.

The mercurial prince had been deposed by the National Assembly in 1970 because of his ties with the Vietnamese Communists.

But the prince's role was ambiguous. Though he had the trappings of government, the real power lay in the Cambodian jungle, where the war was being waged by Communist Khmer Rouge and other rebels led by Khieu Sampan, who in 1967 had been sentenced to death by Sihanouk.

With the Communist victory, it soon became apparent to the Chinese that the Sihanouk card could no longer be played profitably. Chou jilted the prince and turned to Khieu Sampan, courting him with all the wiles at his command.

Soviets will launch space mission

Moscow (AP) — The Soviet Union orbited a new space station Thursday and was expected within the next few days to launch a manned space flight in time for the 20th anniversary of the Soviet space program.

The space station, Salyut 6, was described by Tass as an "orbital scientific station." The news agency said, "the station's on-board systems are functioning normally."

Western experts in Soviet space exploration here said they expected a manned space shot to link up with the orbiting space station within the next few days.

On Oct. 4, the Soviet Union will mark the 20th anniversary of the orbiting of the first Sputnik, the launch that opened the space age.

Gunmen extend ransom deadline

Dacca, Bangladesh (UPI) — Five guerrillas threatened Thursday to blow up their hijacked jet with 146 hostages aboard and set off a "global" terror campaign if Japan breaks its promise to free nine prisoners and pay $6 million Ransom, but extended the dealine by more than a day.

The hijackers freed five hostages — two Americans and an Indian family of three reported to reside in California.

Japan, saying "human life is more precious than the earth," agreed to the demands but said it could not meet the terrorists' original midnight deadline.

With only 20 minutes to go on the deadline, the hijackers granted a 28-hour extension to allow Japan time to gather the money and prisoners together. A Japanese spokesman said they had gathered $2 million in U.S. $100 bills but the remaining $4 million might have to be flown from the United States.

The new deadline was set to expire at 5 p.m. CDT Friday.

Japan also reported that one of the jailed radicals the hijackers have demanded freed refused to leave jail.

Bangladesh officials negotiated with the hijackers, armed with grenades, pistols and plastic explosives, to gain the extension. A U.S. diplomat was at Dacca airport seeking word on up to nine U.S. citizens believed aboard the plane.

The terrorists from the Japanese Red Army released five American residents earlier Thursday — an ailing young yoga student, a weeping actress and a married couple and their child — and won food and fuel supplies, but they gave no hint of their next move.

The freed hostages reported the passengers and crew still aboard the plane were calm as their ordeal dragged on for more than 40 hours.

Japan agreed to submit to the hijackers' demands but said the logistics of rounding up radicals at prisons throughout the country and assembling a $6 million ransom all in U.S. $100 bills were so complicated they could not meet the demands until Friday afternoon.

Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda said his government yielded because "human life is more precious than the earth."

Tokyo's justice minister, Hamjima Fukuda, resigned in protest at his government's capitulation.

Four of the gunmen are Japanese, the nationality of the fifth is unknown but appeared to be under the age of 30. They told Dacca airport officials they would detonate the jet and launch a terrorist "program on a larger, global scale" unless they win all their demands.

In another of their radioed messages the hijackers said they would release women, children, Indians and pakistanis aboard the plane after delivery of the prisoners and the cash, and keep the other hostages aboard until they reach their ultimate destination, which was not known.

From his Japanese prison cell, one of the radicals whose freedom was a terrorist bargaining chip renounced their cause and declared: "I have no intention of going to Dacca."

Toshio Omura, 34, a former student activist deported to Japan from Canada last December, was surprised the hijackers demanded his release.

"I have a different ideology from the," Omura's lawyer quoted him as saying. "I am not suited to militaristic insitutions like theirs."

Carole Wells Karabian, 28, an actress and the wife of former California Assemblyman Walter Karabian, sobbed and told reporters she thought she was being taken out to be shot when the hijackers took her from her husband's side.

"It was the worst experience of my life," Mrs. Karabian said after her release, describing how the five guerrillas commandeered the Paris-to-Tokyo Japan Air Lines flight Wednesday morning shortly after the DC-8 jet left Bombay, India.

"They had automatic pistols in their left hands and grenades and plastic explosives in the other," Mrs. Karabian said, and she quoted the guerrillas as warning: "If there are any tricks, the plane gets blown up."

Iowa DOT to study 'heavy truck' issue

Ames, Iowa (UPI) — The Iowa Department of Transportation has indicated it will conduct a study on the "heavy truck" issue, Rep. Robert A. Krause, D-Whittemore, said.

Krause earlier this month asked the DOT for a study, which would include an analysis of cost, benefits and safety.

Lincoln General year profitable

Lincoln General Hospital finished the fiscal year $81,000 in the black, according to financial figures presented to the hospital board Thursday night.

That surplus of revenues over expenses follows last year's hospital deficit of about $176,000.

Contributing toward the surplus this fiscal year, which ended in August, was an average occupancy rate of more than 76%, according to the figures.

On the average, 189 of 253 beds were occupied, and semi-private beds were 95% full.

In other action, the board approved payment of about $170,500 in liability insurance premiums, including malpractice insurance. The policy would pay up to $500,000 per malpractice case, with a $1 million limit on malpractice coverage for the hospital for the year.

Because more money was budgeted for such coverage than was spent, about $110,000 is expected to go into the self-insurance fund, which would be used if malpractice policy coverage is not enough.

In other action, a resignation letter from ex-member Don Nielson was read to the board. Nielson, who serves on a regional health board, cited "changing attitudes" in his decision to resign. Some persons believe serving on several health boards could constitute a conflict of interests, he said.

The board's nomination committee submitted three names to the mayor to consider in filling Nielson's vacancy: bankers Gordon V. Kuhn and Lee G. Liggett, and attorney Frederick H. Kauffman.

Acting as the Lincoln Hospital Association — a private corporation providing financial support for the hospital — board members approved bylaws for the new Community Development Council. The council, which has existed for about a year, is designed to encourage development and financial support for the hospital.

President to visit SAC Headquarters

Omaha (AP) — President Carter will visit Strategic Air Command Headquarters in Omaha on Oct. 22, according to Rep. John Cavanaugh.

From Washington, Cavanaugh said he was informed Thursday by the White House of the President's plans.

The White House told the Associated Press only that the President would make a trip west about that time and would give no further details.

Cavanaugh said Carter will make a stop in Des Moines the evening before to attend the Iowa Jefferson-Jackson Day observances and will spend the morning of Oct. 22 at SAC then leave for an appearance that evening in Los Angeles.

Woman pleads innocent to Omaha man's death

Omaha (UPI) — A young Omaha woman pleaded innocent Thursday to a first degree murder charge in the shooting death of a man she alleges raped her a week prior to the incident.

Douglas County District Judge James Murphy accepted the plea of Charlene K. Lasley, 22, and bound her over for trial. No trial date was set.

Mrs. Lasley is charged with the Sept. 11 shooting death of Michael E. Jackson, 21, Omaha, who police said was fatally wounded at a north Omaha home used as an after-hours establishment.

Police said Jackson collapsed and died in the kitchen of the home after suffering a .38-caliber bullet wound to the chest.

Kenneth Bovasso, a police homicide officer, testified during a Sept. 20 municipal court hearing Mrs. Lasley told him following her arrest she "was sexually assaulted by the man she shot."

Exon reappoints Yanney

Gov. J.J. Exon has reappointed E. K. Yanney of Lodgepole to the Nebraska Investment Council. Yanney will serve a five-year term, which will expire Sept. 18, 1982.

Exon also announced Thursday the reappointments of Ann Wells of Lincoln and J. D. Anderson of Omaha to six-year terms on the Hall of Fame Commission. Their terms will expire Sept. 14, 1983.

LaVista youth guilty of manslaughter

Papillion (UPI) — Michael P. Wright, 19, LaVista, was found guilty of manslaughter Thursday night in the June 5 shooting death of a friend Wright said was "like a brother" to him.

Wright had been charged with first degree murder in the death of William Bumgarner, 16, Omaha.

The Sarpy County District Court jury deliberated for more than seven hours before returning the verdict.

District Court Judge Ronald Reagan delayed sentencing pending a pre-sentence investigation and continued Wright's $5,000 cash bond.

In testimony Wednesday, Wright said he and Bumgarner had been good friends for two years and Bumgarner was "like a brother" to him.

The shooting occured at Wright's apartment, where Bumgarner, Wright and three others were drinking beer and smoking marijuana, Wright testified.

Wright said when he came into the apartment, Bumgarner was playing with a .38-caliber revolver that had been hidden under the stereo.

Wright said he later took the gun, spun the cylinder, noticed it had only five bullets in it rather than six, and pointed it at his friend.

Previous witnesses testified that Wright had asked Bumgarner for a cigarette and when he refused, Wright pointed the gun at his head and said, "You've got five out of six chances to live."

Wright testified he did not know how the gun went off.

Defense attorney Joseph McQuillan told the jury it should disregard the possibilities of first and second degree murder since there was no premeditation or malice.

McQuillan said it was impossible for a person to kill his best friend over a cigarette and if he did, he should be considered insane.

He said manslaughter also should be disregarded because the shooting was an accident.

79-year-old injured in accident

A 79-year-old Lincoln woman was in fair condition with a broken leg following a car-pedestrian accident Thursday at 16th and B Sts.

The woman, Irma S. Killer, 1715 B St., was hit by a southbound car as she was crossing B St. Thursday morning, police said.

She was admitted to Lincoln General Hospital.

'78 unemployment increase may force premature tax cuts

(c) New York Times

Washington — The administration now believes that the possibility of a rise in unemployment in the second half of 1978 may make it necessary for Congress to cut withholding taxes on wages and salaries before completing action on President Carter's broad-gauge program of tax reduction and reform.

A confidential Treasury memorandum to the President that also reflects the thinking of the Council of Economic Advisers says it would be better if Congress dealt with the program in a single bill.

But that could take into the autumn, and the already apparent risk of a second-half sag in the economy requires planning now for a cut in withholding before the rest of the package goes to the White House as a second bill, according to the memorandum.

This concern was outlined by the Treasury earlier this month in an "overview" of tax-revision proposals calculated to cut taxes for indivudals with incomes of up to $100,000 a year and raise taxes above that income level.

The Treasury document discloses that in the administration view tax reduction is vital to achieving Carter's 1981 goals of high employment and a balanced federal budget.

Corporate tax rates also would be reduced. Altogether, the revenue reduction would be $17.2 billion based on 1976 income, including $13.8 billion for individuals and $3.4 billion for business.

These figures reflect a set of nine Treasury "tax reform option papers" dated Sept. 2, prepared after consultations with other agencies and the White House.

Some elements have been revised since then, officials said, in what has been a running dialogue with the White House staff and the President himself. In all, the Sept. 2 papers — a copy of which was obtained by The New York Times — are authoritatively understood to represent the main elements and most of the important details of the proposals Carter will send to Congress.

The Carter strategy is to sugar-coat with tax reductions for most taxpayers and corporations some tax "reform" proposals that will be resisted by some industries and well-to-do individuals.

For example, the restaurant, motel, theater and sports industries are sure to lobby vigorously against Carter's expected proposal to allow deductions from taxable income for only half the cost of business meals and to prohibit deductions for all forms of business entertainment.

One soak-the-rich angle calculated to sit well with Congress was a proposed jump in the effective tax rate to 39.3% from 33.4% for persons with incomes above $200,000. "Effective tax rate" means the percentage of over all income paid to the government.

Officials said Carter was likely to send his tax message to Congress on Oct. 14 or 17.

The most controversial element in the package will concern capital gains, profits on land, securities and other assets. Half of such profits now are generally exempt from tax, and Carter is committed to ending such preferential treatment.

The Treasury has proposed dropping the exclusion for individuals to 30% in 1970, 15% in 1980 and zero thereafter. For corporations, the capital gains tax rate would rise from 30% now to 36% in 1979, 42% in 1980 and 46% in 1981.

The present corporate tax rate on profits above $50,000 would be dropped to 46% from the present 48%.

In addition, the administration is expected to recommend that Congress require payment of taxes on "unrealized" capital gains at the death of the asset's owner. There would be some exceptions for surviving spouses, farms and family businesses.

The Treasury had recommended against such a proposal in its Sept. 2 option paper largely on the ground that it would not fare well in the House Ways and Means Committee. But the White House has decided that such a proposal must be made for the sake of tax equity and to avoid objections from Wall Street that sales of securities would dry up if an ordinary income tax on profits could be deferred by bequeathing appreciated shares to one's heirs.

The Sept. 2 papers disclosed substantial differences between the Treasury and the Council of Economic Advisers on how to stimulate business investment. That breach has since been healed, it was learned, with the council giving up its preference for more flexible depreciation of business equipment in favor of the Treasury's emphasis on a more generous investment tax credit and partial reduction of the double taxation of stock dividends.

Authoritative sources said Thursday night that some details of the improvement in the investment tax credit remained to be ironed out. One possibility was that the present credit of 10% would be raised temporarily to 14%, then reduced to 12% for a further temporary period and would then be returned to 10%. Several variations on this approach were under consideration, all with a view to stimulating investment in machines and new plants, the sector of the economy that has been least buoyant.

"If the economy is to return to a high employment level by 1981, a strong growth of business investment will be needed on the demand side," the Treasury's option paper on business tax cuts said. "This is indicated by the fact that no other segment of the economy appears likely to take up the slack."

Carter: Mondale irreplaceable

Washington (UPI) — President Carter gave Vice President Walter Mondle his second big endorsement in two days Thursday, saying he heads "my own inner circle of advisers."

"I would say without derogating the other members of my staff that there is no one who would approach him in his importance to me, his closeness to me and also his ability to carry out a singular assignment with my complete trust," Carter told a news conference.

In an extraordinary double-barreled endorsement, Carter telephoned the Washington bureau chiefs of the New York Times and the Los Angeles Times Wednesday to rebut suggestions Mondale was just another powerless, side-lines vice president.

"Fritz has always been the deputy president," Carter told Hedrick Smith of the New York Times, calling him a "partner" and an "irreplaceable" friend and adviser.

In a half-hour chat with the Los Angeles Times' Jack Nelson, Carter was quoted as saying, "on 30 minutes notice, I would be perfectly willing to say, 'Fritz, I can't go to the Soviet Union because of some reason, would you go and do the special final arrangement in the SALT negotiations with Brezhnev.' He has complete knowledge of the subject and of my position."

Mondale obviously liked what he had heard. He beamed Thursday, joking and smiling at a ceremony in which his former law schoolmate and law partner Harry MacLaughlin was sworn in as a federal judge.

In his presidential calls, Carter sought to emphasize Mondale's role was superior to that of Bert Lance, his fallen budget director, countering criticism he is surrounded by a tight group of Georgia "Good Ol' Boys" as his chief advisers.

"With the exception of actual budget hearings and cabinet meetings, which Bert and I both attended, I saw Bert one or two hours a week," Carter said. "I see Fritz four to five hours a day.

"There is not a single aspect of my own responsibilities in which Fritz is not intimately associated. He is the only person that I have with both the substantive knowledge and political stature to whom I can turn over a major assignment."

Mondale, a former Minnesota senator, told reporters earlier this week:

"I've been given access to confidential sources of information; I serve on central policy boards and have access to the President on a regular and on an informal basis.

"It is working better than I had hoped. It's relationship that's growing. It's very fulfilling. It's not unusual to spend five or six hours with him. He listens when I really feel strongly about something. He asks any point of view."

Labor expert tries to avert dock strike

New York (AP) — The nation's top labor mediator entered efforts here Thursday to avert a dock strike that could cripple ports along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

Wayne L. Horvitz, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, met separately with industry negotiators and Thomas W. "Teddy" Gleason, president of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA).

Gleason had said a strike — threatened for Friday midnight — would keep his 50,000 members along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts from servicing containerships, which carry cargo in trailer-size boxes.

Container cargo now makes up two-thirds of the ocean freight moving through major ports.

The main disagreement is over a job-security formula to replace one outlawed by the federal government last year.

Carter plans ready if treaty fails

Washington (UPI) — President Carter said Thursday if rioting breaks out in Panama because the Senate rejects the Panama Canal treaty, he is committed to defending the waterway even "if it takes 100,000 troops," according to a California congressman.

In a separate meeting, Carter also told the chief executives of major movie companies he believes the United States can defend the canal "against any military action."

Carter met with House Republicans in a closed White House meeting, and Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif., said later the president warned if the Senate turns down the treaty there is a distinct possibility rioting and sabotage may erupt in the canal zone.

"But I will tell you," Dornan quoted the president as saying, "I will defend the Panama Canal. I can defend it. Some people say it will take 100,000 to defend it. Well, I've got the troops and I will use them, if it takes 100,000."

"However, will you in the Congress back up a sustained action in the canal zone?" Carter continued, according to Dornan. "That is the serious question over the possibility of a conflict there."

A presidential aide said the congressman had "broken a long-time rule" by quoting the president directly and denied Carter had talked about possible disturbances.

Dornan said the president also called Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos "a dictator . . . an enlightened dictator who has concern for his people."

Seeking support for the treaty, Carter told the film industry leaders: "It's very important I have your support on matters crucial to this country."

The president stressed he believed the canal could be operated on a cooperative basis with Panama and added "I think we can defend it against any military action."

Ronald Reagan and other treaty critics argue the constitution requires the House vote on any measure that involves disposing of federal property.

Dornan said Carter promised the GOP congressmen the House would have a role in debating and voting on the disposition of the U.S.-owned Panama Canal Company which will be replaced by a new U.S.-Panamanian Canal Commission.

Frank Moore, White House congressional liaison, said "the president's remarks could be characterized something like" Dornan's quotes.

But Moore denied Carter's reported remarks about Panamanian sabotage and said "this is the first instance — we don't take notes, we don't record, purposely so there can be a free exchange — that any member of Congress went out and purported to directly quote the president. He's broken a long-time rule."

Senate vote alone will ratify Panama Canal treaty

Washington (AP) — The Senate alone, not the House, has the responsibility to ratify or reject the Panama Canal treaty, Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell said Thursday.

"The text and history of the Constitution as well as the decisions of the Supreme Court and historical treaty practice all support the opinion . . . that property of the United States may be transferred by treaty" without House action, Bell told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Treaty opponents have sought to force a House vote on the issue on grounds that property or territory belonging to the United States can be ceded only by the vote of both houses. The Constitution provides for the ratification of a treaty with a foreign nation by a two-thirds vote of all senators present and voting.

Several members of the committee, in its third day of hearings on the treaty, expressed concern over differences in interpretation of key sections of the pact. Some questioned whether the Panamanians hold the American view that the United States retains the permanent right to intervene militarily in Panama if the canal's neutrality is threatened.

The current U.S. ambassador to Panama told the Senate committee that Panamanians are far more concerned about the presence of a U.S.-owned Canal Zone dividing their country.

"They want a canal that works well as much as we do," said Ambassador William J. Jorden. "They have pride in it. They benefit from it."

The treaty would turn over most of the present Canal Zone to Panama.

School phobia child doesn't fear school

By Nancy Hicks
Star Staff Writer

Little Mary has an upset tummy and can't come to school today.

That's a legitimate reason for a legitimate school absence, except when the tummy ache, the headache, the backache, the slight temperature keeps a child from school 30 or 40 or 50 days a year.

Then the problem is normally not illness, but what Lincoln Public Schools social worker Kay Dutton calls school avoidance.

By whatever name — school avoidance, school phobia, school resistance — it is a serious problem affecting at least 100 Lincoln students, according to Mrs. Dutton.

School resistance, as Jerry Aspengren of Lincoln's Child Guidance Center calls it, is more a hesitance to leave home than fear of going to school.

"It's not that school is so horrible, but that home is preferable," said Aspengren, who himself was once a school avoider.

"A child can come up with all sorts of things about school they don't like, but the real reason is not school," he said.

A child may be jealous of a younger brother or sister who will get mother's sole attention while he is at school. He may be afraid his mother will leave while he is at school, said Aspengren.

School avoidance is different from truancy. Children who are truant go off with friends, shop, walk in the sewer, smoke behind McDonald's rather than go to school. School avoidance children stay at home, said Mrs. Dutton.

School avoidance often begins early in school — kindergarten or first grade — and the solution is simple — "Make the child go to school," said Aspengren and Mrs. Dutton.

Even before the first counseling appointment, parents are encouraged to "force the child to go to school, so he doesn't get into the habit of staying home," Aspengren said.

Child guidance counselors usually see parents and youngsters before the problem has become a habit. They get calls from responsible parents who "want to do something about it and don't know what to do," said Aspengren.

Mrs. Dutton more often works with children who have long records of school absences.

School avoidance, she says, doesn't just happen over night. It develops and often peaks during junior high school.

And where there is a history of many school absences, there is always a "cooperating parent," Mrs. Dutton believes. The parent, for whatever reasons continues to allow, perhaps even unconsciously encourages the child to remain at home.

"I have five children and I know hundreds of other mothers. We wanted our children in school, not underfoot," Mrs. Dutton said.

Once school avoidance becomes habitual, once the child withdraws into the home, the problem intensifies. These children are often bright, usually manipulative and sometimes almost omnipotent in their homes, she said.

The cases from Mrs. Dutton's school files are each unique, but through each runs a consistent pattern.

A junior high boy missed 66 of 88 school days. He stayed home 26 days with migraines, six days with the flue, nine days with a cold.

A beautiful, charming, verbal elementary school girl, overprotected by her parents, missed 53 days of kindergarten. Her absences increased during the following years.

Avoidance comes in differing guises. Some children refuse to get dressed; others get dressed but won't go to school. Some go to school but walk out the back door.

And the illnesses are many: headaches, four to five hours of nausea each day, slight temperatures, earaches, vague pain below the waist — "you name it, they'll have it," Mrs. Dutton said.

"They may faint, they may scream, but they don't go to school."

And the simple solution — get them to school and keep them there — is not always easy.

"They may object, they may gripe and put up all sorts of fussing, but the longer you put it off the more difficult it is for them to go back," Aspengren said.

The first week or two can be nasty, admitted Mrs. Dutton. One elementary girl had to be put in a room by herself for three days until she quit screaming and could go into the classroom.

For Child Guidance counselors school avoidance is usually successfully solved when parents cooperate.

Mrs. Dutton's success rate is not as encouraging. She often is not made aware of the absence history until the child reaches junior high, and the parents will not always cooperate.

A judge made one unemployed father sit in the school office all day and take the child home at the end of the day. The boy soon stayed at school.

But without parental support, school avoidance usually continues.

"What they do is wear us down to the point where we give up," Mrs. Dutton said.

The sad thing about school avoidance, she said, is that "the crime is only against themselves."

Wobbling Wally touring globe atop a unicycle

Bangkok (AP) — Whither wobbling Wally Watts? Bound around the world on a unicycle.

Watts, 29, a railroad inspector from Edmonton, Canada, is in Bangkok now, welding his wheel and taking a breather before heading south to Singapore.

The trip, which began in New York in April 1976, has had its breaks — not all of them good. A bus ran him off the road in Turkey and he broke an arm. In Europe, he injured a leg.

Those and other problems forced him to bus some legs of the journey.

His unicycle, a 42-inch model he rebuilt in England en route, does get its share of stares. And the attention has taught him an aggressive brand of defensive driving — important in some Asian countries where the rules of the road are open to debate.

September goes at last

Postcard

By Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — I said to the dachshund: "Good thing September doesn't have 31 days. I just about made it as it is."

September is never a good month for me. In our mystical Land of Oz — Marin County, Ca. — we look for the mysteries behind troubled times. (I suppose you take aspirin. There's a superstitious custom.)

The woman who straightens up the scatter doubles in stargazing.

She said: "Things will be better when the Sun is out of your Twelfth House."

A Sausalito soothsayer told me: "We are feeling the searching rays of the lost continent of Lemur. The Lemurians are waiting until we have reached a higher awareness. Then they will reappear."

Meanwhile I went out and got a haircut.

"The era of long hair for men is ending," says a fashionable men's magazine. "Beards may remain but they will be closely trimmed. Sideburns will be shortened."

I did let my hair grow. At least to the collar line. The children are fashion conscious. I got the idea they were ashamed of a father who didn't have hair like the back end of a horse. However, I resisted growing a beard.

I said: "Alexander the Great did not allow his men to wear beards."

True. Alexander discovered that the beard made a good handle for an enemy to hand onto. While he chopped you up with his sword hand.

"I caught him by his beard, and smote him, and slew him." So says the Old Testament. The Infantry Journal of those stirring times.

☆ ☆ ☆

Thirty horrid days had September. The dog brought home fleas. Everything at the supermarket went up. I ran out of grocery money and had to draw on next month's allowance.

Twice I put carbon paper in backwards. Had to type the whole page over.

I began waking at 4 in the morning and reviewing my life. It got bad reviews. Those are my Septembers.

☆ ☆ ☆

Into October. Shorn like a sheep. The dachshund has a new flea collar. I set off a deadly flea bomb in the sealed and empty house. Germ warfare. No mercy.

I put in a case of rousing red wine from the Piedmont. A new bottle of cooking sherry for morning catastrophes.

Laid in some firewood. Prepared for the winter.

"The Cap'n's bent on all canvas," said the moppets. "He'll round the Horn or he'll sail us down to Davy Jones."

☆ ☆ ☆

Another birthday creeping up on little cat feet. The children said: "What do you want for your birthday present?"

A rhetorical question. They have already decided what I should have. "A Monopoly set." (They've been waiting for one for a long time.)

The present you give to father should be something you want. So he should want it, too. That's only fair.

I said: "Monopoly will be just fine."

They said: "And we could give you a TV set. For our upstairs playroom."

Great kids. I said: "I don't know how to thank you. Fetch me the cooking sherry."

Bridge

By B. Jay Becker

You are the dealer and open One Spade. Partner responds One Notrump. What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1.♠KQ743 ♥KQ6 ♦AJ3 ♣K9
2.♠KJ9652 ♥A7 ♦10 ♣AQ84
3.♠AQJ85 ♥KQ972 ♦AQ ♣7
4.♠QJ10974 ♥A8 ♦KQJ ♣AK
5.♠AKJ10964 ♥3 ♦AJ8 ♣Q7

1. Two notrump. Partner's one notrump response is practically always based on 6 to 9 high-card points. As there is no way of knowing whether partner has 6 or 7 points, as distinguished from 8 or 9 points, the best you can do is invite him to bid again by raising to two notrump. Partner should pass with minimum values and go on to three notrump with maximum values.

The two notrump bid logically shows 17 to 19 points. With less than 17 you'd pass one notrump because the combined hands have less than 26 points. With more than 19 you'd raise to three notrump because the combined hands have at least 26 points.

2. Two clubs. Despite your own strong preference for spades, you should simply bid two clubs. If partner passes, indicating a preference for clubs rather than spades and minimum values for his response, you are probably in the best contract. If you were to bid two spades over one notrump, you'd run the risk of finding partner with a singleton spade and perhaps four or five clubs.

3. Three hearts. You should assume that there's a game and therefore jump-shift to three hearts (forcing). It would be too pessimistic to bid only two hearts over one notrump. That's what you'd bid if you had only 12 or 13 high-card points instead of 18. You shouldn't bet your life on making a game, but the odds strongly favor strong action.

4. Four spades. Holding nine sure tricks, you ought to count on partner for one or more. You should therefore bid game without further ado. It would be wrong to bid only three spades, because that would not compel partner to bid again. Three spades merely invites partner to continue and you should not willingly run the risk of partner passing when you can almost certainly make a game.

5. Three spades. This hand is obviously not as strong as the previous one. You have only seven sure winners instead of nine, and the best you can do is invite partner to bid again.

If partner has minimum values for his notrump response, he'll pass — and you may have trouble making even nine tricks. But if partner has maximum values he will bid again, and you'll probably wind up making four (possibly five) spades.

Policeman accused of 'Walking Tall' in small town

Lee Fla. (AP) — When the one-man police department in this town of 250 residents issued 287 traffic tickets, the city council felt it had had enough. It fired the patrolman last June after six months on the job. Now he is suing the town and residents are divided.

The supporters of policeman Gary E. Sale point out that no tickets were for going less than 10 miles an hour over the limit and only 40 were for going 15 miles or less over the limit. And nearly half the town's 170 registered voters have signed a petition asking the council to resign.

But County Judge Wetzel Blair, who has dismissed more than 100 of Sale's tickets, says of him: "He's seen 'Walking Tall' too many times." Others say the town had no trouble until he arrived.

Sale is a former Pasco County Sheriff's deputy and policeman in Port Richey. Officials say his predecessor gave 44 tickets in 18 months.

"Before I came up to Lee, they had no law enforcement at all," said Sale. "The two guys before me, they had grown up there all their lives and didn't want to write citations."

Rolls-Royce 'concerned'

London (AP) — Rolls-Royce Motors Holding, Ltd., and other European small-volume makers of specialist cars are "gravely concerned" over an American proposal to ban the sale of fuel-inefficient cars by 1980, an official of the firm said.

Dear Abby

By Abigail
Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: When I first dated my wife she was 16. On our third date, when she asked me to buy her a pack of cigarettes, I told her I thought girls who smoked looked like tramps, and that was the last time I'd take her out.

Three months later she called and told me she'd quit smoking, so I started dating her again. We dated for three years during which time she never smoked in my presence, so with a solemn promise that she's never smoke again, we were married.

She kept her promise for three years. Then I started to find evidence that she was smoking again. When I confronted her, she denied it.

For the last 10 years, she's been smoking openly and I detest it. What can I do? I've told her it was useless for her to spend a fortune on expensive clothes because when she lights a cigarette, she looks like a $20 hooker.

I have nothing against hookers. In fact, if I could find one who didn't smoke I could use her services because my wife's tobacco habit has certainly put a crimp in our love life.

DETESTS CIGARETTES

DEAR DETESTS: What can you do? Love her or leave her. But don't nag her, or she'll increase her smoking as an excuse to calm her frazzled nerves.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 48 and my fiance is 55. I've been divorced 15 years, and his wife died five years ago. We've been going together for two years and plan to marry soon.

He always compliments me on the way I look. I do dress nicely and am always perfectly groomed. Now for my problem:

When I was in my teens, I was very ill and all my hair fell out. I have no eyelashes, eyebrows, and not a hair on my head. I am completely hairless.

I wear false eyelashes and a wig; and I paint my eyebrows on.

I'm a very honest person, and don't like to keep this from him, but I'm afraid of how he'll react. I've started to tell him several times, but couldn't get the words out.

My mother says I should wait until after we're married to tell him. My father says I should tell him now.

Do you think it would change his feelings for me? He says he loves me, and I know I love him. Please help me.

WIGGED OUT

DEAR WIGGED: Tell him. If it changes his feelings for you, you're better off knowing it now. If he really loves you, it won't matter. (Many women marry bald MEN.)

DEAR ABBY: Junior has been living at home since he was graduated from college three years ago. (He's 25.)

He works for me (I'm his father) and makes excellent wages. The problem is how to get rid of him.

He's practically engaged to a very nice girl who lives 300 miles from here, but we're afraid he'll never marry her as long as he has all the comforts of home. We don't charge him room or board.

It's not the money: it's the fact that he doesn't want the responsibility of taking care of himself. Several times in the last two years, he has talked about taking an apartment with another fellow, but he's always backed out at the last minute.

We've dropped subtle hints, but to no avail. His mother and I agree that if Junior moved, it would be better for him and better for us.

How can we tell him (politely) to move?

FT. WAYNE FATHER

DEAR FATHER: Talk turkey! Tell him he has until Thanksgiving to find another pad. And say, "Please."

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Homeowners heed tax tips

It's Your Money

By Jane Bryant
Quinn

New York — One of the best tax shelters you'll ever lay eyes on is the house you live in. Homeownership is such a valued state that Congress had draped it in tax favors not granted any other investment.

Most of these breaks come into play when you sell the house. But to get the full profit that's coming to you, you have to keep track of the costs and expenses during all the years you live there. Fortunately, the record keeping needn't be elaborate — just the appropriate bills and documents tossed into a file or shoebox, to be resurrected when the time comes to sell. Here's your guide to the homeowner's tax shelter, according to the tax publisher, Prentice-Hall:

— Tax Deferral. If you sell your house at a profit, and put all the money toward buying a new house, that profit won't be taxed — provided that you buy a new house within 18 months. If you build, the new house must be started within 18 months and occupied within two years.

The tax on your profit isn't eliminated — it's just deferred, and continues to be deferred no matter how many moves you make. The full tax never falls due, unless you sell a house and don't buy a new one within the required period. At that point, you're taxed on the accumulated profit of all your past houses. If you ever buy a less expensive house than the one you sold, you're taxed on the portion of profit that's not reinvested in the new house.

If you own the house until your death, you never pay taxes on the profits. Whatever tax is due will be paid by your estate or your heirs when the house is sold.

—Minimizing Profit. If your house cost $35,000 and you sell for $50,000, you may think you have a profit of $15,000. But in fact, your gain is smaller than that. You're allowed to subtract a long list of expenses from the selling price. This reduces the reported profit, and greatly lowers the tax that's eventually paid.

Here's what you can deduct: (1) All costs of buying the house, like lawyer's fees, title insurance, survey, and so on. Keep your statement of closing costs, which shows all these items. (2) The cost of any improvements you made to the property, such as adding storm windows, finishing a basement, installing a new furnace, planting more trees. But you can't deduct routine maintenance costs like painting or repairs.) Keep the bills that prove these expenses. (3) All costs of selling the house including listing fees and brokerage commissions.

You can also deduct the cost of fixing up the house to make it more attractive to buyers, as long as the painting and repairing is done within 30 days of the sale.

Many, many homeowners report a larger gain then they have to when they sell their homes, simply because they didn't keep track of these deductible costs. The end result is a higher-than-necessary tax.

— Older People. If you sell a house when you're 65 or over, and the sales price (reduced by your expenses) is $45,000 or less, the entire gain is tax-free. If the price is higher, a portion of the gain is tax-free. The remaining portion can be tax-deferred, as usual, by using it to buy another house. To qualify for the senior citizen break, you have to have used the house for at least five out of the past eight years.

— Deducting A Loss. Normally, any loss you take when you sell your house is not deductible. But if you rent out the house before it's for sale, it becomes a business property. In that case you can deduct the house's loss in market value, starting from the date it became a business property. To prove the loss, have the house appraised before you start to rent. You can also deduct a loss on a house you inherit (even a house you're living in, provided that you put it up for sale right away).

Ask an accountant for help in reporting gains and losses on your house, or a house you inherit.

Eggs not for omelets

Atlanta (AP) — When Johnnie Ann Robertson dropped three eggs from a carton, they bounced.

"They're shaped just like those plastic Easter eggs, but they're no good in omelets," said Mrs. Robertson.

She checked with Tim Floyd, plant manager of the Savannah Valley Egg Co., which sold the carton of eggs to the Atlanta grocer from whom Mrs. Robertson bought them.

Floyd wants the plastic eggs back. They're used as test weights in the company's egg sorting machine.

Dentist sued for 'slaptraction'

St. Louis (UPI) — A tooth extraction has proved painful for a St. Louis County dentist.

Dr. Leonard Rosen has been ordered to pay $6,100 in damages to Rebecca Harper. The girl was 9 years old when she went to Rosen in 1974 to have a tooth pulled.

The girl became upset and tried to jump from the dentist's chair, knocking Rosen's instruments to the floor. Rosen admitted slapping the girl to calm her down, leaving a bruise on her face.

Her parents sued and were awarded damages.

Testimony showed the tooth never was pulled, but fell out after the slap.

Education specialist quizzed about UNISON plan

Associated Press

The Legislature's Postsecondary Education Advisory Committee interviewed John Folger of the Education Commission of the States Thursday about reviewing a proposed information system on Nebraska's higher education.

"I want to make it very clear that I can't tell you what you want to do," Folger told the committee. "That's an internal decision.

"What I asked the senator panel chairman Jerry Warner of Waverly over breakfast this morning is why he wanted a study; why you don't just implement it. He said he wanted to make sure this was in the ball park.

"Well, I can tell you if it's in the ball park and which parts aren't," Folger said.

The information system proposal is called UNISON and was drafted by the Nebraska Coordinating Commission for Postsecondary Education, a group formed by the Unicameral that has representation from the various private and public post-secondary systems in the state.

Folger's time, about a week, would be donated to review the proposed information system. A legislative staff member said cost of the review, including personnel to aid Folger and expenses, would probably be no more than $5,000.

The information system would be to help with data on budgeting and program decisions.

Concerns of the legislative committee expressed during the Folger interview included Hastings Sen. Richard Marvel's worry about "tremendous overlapping" of programs.

Folger told Marvel his role in reviewing the information system would be to tell legislators if it would provide the proper data for them to make decisions on duplication and other matters, such as budgets.

The committee adjourned for lunch without deciding whether to use Folger's services.

Criticized sex ed film showing set

Wayne (AP) — The sex education movie that sparked a clash between Gov. J. J. Exon and some members of the State Board of Education will be shown at a public meeting Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the Wayne City Auditorium.

A group of parents from the Wayne area who object to the contents plan the showing.

Mrs. Frederick Mann said, "We want people to understand what we are talking about."

The 18-minute color movie, titled "About Sex," became the center of controversy after being shown recently to senior girls at Wayne High School.

The State Board of Education said it wasn't responsible for the film and the issue was a local matter. Exon called the film's dialogue and glimpses of nudity "shocking."

Men duded up for meet

Doniphan (UPI) — Mayor Robert (Jody) Labrie and 19 other men who live in this south central Nebraska village are stitching sequins on their gowns and doing up their hair in preparation for a beauty contest Saturday in honor of a local cemetery.

Basically it's your normal beauty contest, except the contestants aren't as beautiful as usual," Labrie said.

The mayor said some of the men "are dressing a little silly" but others "look pretty nice in drag." He said by the looks of a recent dress rehearsal, the beauty pageant may be Doniphan's last.

Labrie said the event was planned this year to raise money for Cedar View cemetery. Proceeds will go to the cemetery association for care and upkeep of the cemetery's grounds. The contest is part of Doniphan's 42nd annual fall festival.

Ainsworth man killed

Ainsworth (AP) — Dwight M. Johnson, 23, of rural Ainsworth, was killed early Thursday when his pickup truck collided with a semi-trailer rig on U.S. 20 about 4½ miles west of Ainsworth, the State Patrol reported.

The patrol said Johnson died at the scene of the crash. The driver of the semi, Robert L. Heater, 63, of Rippey, Iowa, suffered minor injuries, the patrol reported.

$50,000 in drugs found

Valentine (UPI) — A 37-year-old Long Pine man was held Thursday in the Cherry County jail on drug charges.

County Sheriff Jim Ward said a large quantity of marijuana valued at more than $50,000 was found in the man's car. Ward said it was the largest amount of marijuana ever confiscated in Cherry County.

Grant to aid aging

Omaha (UPI) — The University of Nebraska-Omaha said Thursday it has received a $57,000 federal grant to develop its insitute on aging on the three University of Nebraska campuses.

David Peterson, UNO's gerontology program and institute director, said the institute would "coordinate aging-related activities among the various departments and campuses of the University of Nebraska with the money received from the administration on aging.

School issue on ballot

Grand Island (UPI) — Hall County School District 30 voters are scheduled to decide Oct. 18 the fate of a $575,000 bond issue for improvements at two schools northwest of Grand Island.

Supt. Gary Myers said additions and modifications at Engleman Elementary School and Westridge Junior High School are needed due to an 85% increase in enrollment since 1971.

Allegations 'twisted'

York (AP) — York County Sheriff Darold Roberdeau said some allegations of mistreatment made by a former inmate were "obviously twisted out of proportion."

The former inmate, Jerry D. Olson of York, has filed a $50,000 claim against the county for injuries he said he suffered when three other inmates allegedly attacked him. The sheriff said there was no indication Olson was in trouble, nor did the inmate ask for medical attention.

Detective suspended

Omaha (AP) — Detective Marion Kelly has been suspended from the Omaha police force for three days following an incident during which stray bullets struck two houses.

Kelly fired the shots last Thursday as he tried to stop a youth allegedly fleeing in a stolen car. Police Chief Richard Anderson said he would not comment on the suspension.

Zorinsky draws praise for frugality

Washington (AP) — Sen. Edward Zorinsky's announcement that he was returning to the treasury $313,000 of the funds allotted to him for running his office this year has brought a flood of flattering letters.

"Why don't you run for president?" asked one correspondent. "Why don't you take Bert Lance's job?" asked another, referring to the recently resigned director of the Office of Management and Budget.

So far, since the Sept. 15 announcement by the freshman Democrat from Nebraska, he has received about 4,800 letters from all across the country and even from Canada, his office reported Thursday.

"Every single one of them was favorable," an aide said.

The letters are still coming in. The aide said that 30 were received just in the first delivery of the day.

Zorinsky's annual office allowance for staff, geared to the size of the state, is $449,063. In addition, he is entitled to $178,855 to hire aides to assist with his work on Senate committees.

He took office in January and the fiscal year ends Sept. 30. The aide said the amount he is returning to the treasury would be even greater if he had been in office a full year.

Other senators and House members have failed to spend all their office allowance for a year but seldom has the amount returned been as high as Zorinsky's, checks of payroll records show.

Exon, Bayh discuss Short

Gov. J. James Exon has discussed the stalled appointments of the Nebraska U.S. attorney and marshal with Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind.

But the governor said he was not trying to use Bayh, a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, to pressure the Justice Department to approve Clive Short of Omaha for marshal.

Exon said he was discussing farm problems with Bayh Monday and used the occasion to ask him about the procedures in connection with the efforts to get Short confirmed, along with Ed Warin, who has been nominated for U.S. attorney for Nebraska.

Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., has said he will block the Warin appointment until the Short nomination is withdrawn.

Farm bill contains good and bad news

By Dominick Costello
Farm Editor

An effort to help farmers understand the new farm bill produced some good news that farmers liked and some news they detested.

The new farm bill was explained by a battery of officials from several U.S. Department of Agriculture agencies at a special meeting here this week.

Farm owners were unhappy about a provision that doesn't allow for any payment for land set aside from crop production.

Landowners asked who will pay the taxes on the unused land. Glenn Kreuscher, state executive director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said "The non-payment provision was put in because of criticism that the government was paying farmers for doing nothing."

Farmers help to receive enough benefits from loan and target price supports to offset the taxes and cost of maintaining a cover crop on the unused land.

There may be some payment for establishing a ground cover on the land under a conservation program, but that fact hasn't been approved yet by the government.

Farmers were generally pleased with improvements in the loan program for grain storage bins. A more liberal loan program from the Farmers Home Administration to aid farmers in financial trouble from drought and low prices, was also well received.

Farmers were shocked to learn that if they farm land for three land owners but one doesn't want to be in the new farm program they will be unable to obtain benefits for any of the farms they operate.

The agency officials were unable to go into detail on many questions because the rules and regulations to administer the program cannot be published until President Carter signs the bill into law. He has until Oct. 6 to do so.

"This meeting is a bit early," said Kreuscher. "If he doesn't sign the bill, we will have a new set of regulations to operate under."

USDA officials in Washington apparently expect the President to sign the bill. They have put together a list of proposed regulations which will be published in the Federal Register after the bill is signed.

"Farmers will have 30 days to comment on the bill's regulations. They have never used this procedure before," said George Harnett, a program specialist at ASCS.

Farmers can obtain a copy of the proposed rules by writing to their congressman or to the superintendent of documents, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington D.C., 20250.

Farmers can then send in their objections on any of the proposed rules individually or through their farm organizations.

Group of angry Nebraska farmers to join in ag strike on Dec. 14

By Dominick Costello
Farm Editor

A group of angry Nebraska farmers calling themselves Farmers Strike will cooperate with a Colorado based farm group calling itself American Agriculture in a strike on Dec. 14.

George Boucher, 60, a farmer from Ravenna, said his organization has been working on a strike project since July. "We had our first public demonstration at the annual town celebration here," he said.

Boucher said he has no idea how many farmers will be involved in his group's activity. "We have had about four people who have done the bulk of the work but we had 250 at our last meeting," he said.

"We don't have a membership list or dues. We want a group that is entirely spontaneous but we think it will work," he said.

Boucher said that in addition to the plan to strike the farm group will build a small alcohol plant that will process 5,000 bushels of grain a month into motor fuel. "We already have the cooperation of a Lincoln-based oil firm," he said. "They will blend our alcohol with a load of gasoline right here in town."

The state Gasohol Committee has taken an interest in the project that Boucher and his group want to build but have not yet taken a position on it. "I am sure it will come up at the committee meeting Friday," said Todd Sneller, assistant to the program administrator, Charles R. Fricke.

Boucher said the group was already taking subscriptions of loads of grain for the proposed plant.

"We are strictly a farmer movement," he said. "We will continue to feed our livestock during the strike, but work to get livestock prices to 100% of parity."

Parity of income is described as a price that will assure farmers of a gross income adequate to provide the farmer and his family with a standard of income equal to that of other persons with gainful occupations.

If prices reach 100% of parity, corn would bring $3.45 a bushel, wheat $5.03 a bushel and grain sorghum $5.78 a cwt.

"We figure we can make alcohol and pay full parity prices for the grain if we can get the politics out of alcohol and get it into the gas tanks," Boucher said.

Boucher has sent telegrams to Billy Carter and President Jimmy Carter in an effort to garner support. "We need the Carter that knows how to make money from alcohol to help us," he said in the telegram to Billy Carter at Plains Ga.

Boucher said the organization will raise the war cry "Remember Pueblo" after a meeting Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland had with hundreds of farmers at Pueblo, Colo.

"We had people there from 27 states with only four days notice," he said. "Bergland will never forget it."

Boucher said his group is planning to hold a rally at Grand Island within 30 days and hopes to participate in a planned demonstration with Oklahoma farmers at the Nebraska-Oklahoma football game in Norman, the Friday after Thanksgiving.

"We do want to talk to Bob Devaney first so we don't unintentionally do something to disrupt the game or cause a problem," he said.

Boucher said the effort has been expensive so far. "I have an $830 phone bill for just the past month," he said.

Boucher played an active role in State Sen. Loran Schmit's battles with meat packers and has been an active Farm Bureau member but takes a dim view of all farm organizations' effectiveness.

"If they would work as hard for farmers as they do at selling insurance they would do a lot more good in the world," he said.

The Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting Service offered this comparison of the current prices of grain and livestock nationally in August compared to what it would have been at 100% of parity:

Current prices	100% of parity
Corn $1.45 bu	$3.45 bu
Wheat $1.99-bu.	$5.03 bu.
Sorghum $2.75 cwt.	$5.78 cwt.
Oats $0.92 bu.	$1.74 bu.
Soybeans $5.34 bu.	$7.61 bu.
All beef cattle $34.70 cwt.	$58.30 cwt.
Hogs $42.80 cwt.	$55.40 cwt.
Lamb $49.00 cwt.	$61.90 cwt.
Milk $9.67 cwt.	$12.90 cwt.
Eggs $0.51.5 doz.	$0.80.9 dox.

Ak champ steer sells for $14.60

Omaha (AP) — Gorat's Steak House of Omaha purchased the grand champion steer at Ak-Sar-Ben's golden anniversary livestock exposition Wednesday for $14.60 a pound.

Bill Graff, 15, Bancroft, got a total of $18,104 for his 1,240-pound Limousin-Herford. The $14.60 a pound was the second highest ever paid for a grand champion steer. The record is $15.

Arby's Roast Beef paid $9,000 on a record bid of $7.50 a pound for the reserve grand champion, a Limousin-Hereford shown by Steve Yackley, 15, of Onida, S.D.

The grand champion market heifer, a Limousin-Hereford entered by Tammie Johnson, 15, Craig, was sold for $8,812.50 to Mr. C's Steak House of Omaha for a record $7.50 a pound.

The grand champion market hog shown by Marty Pearson of Winfred, S.D., a Hampshire-Duroc barrow, was sold to Safeway Stores of Omaha for a record $22.50 a pound, a total of $5,242.50.

Northern Natural Gas Co. of Omaha paid a record $8.10 a pound and gave Greg Hilbert of Algona, Iowa, $1,830.60 for his reserve grand champion market hog, a 226-pound Yorkshire-Hampshire gilt.

The grand champion lamb, a 103-pound Suffolk wether shown by Kevin Mobley of Sioux City, Iowa, was purchased for a record $24.75 pound by Hinky-Dinky Stores of Omaha. The animal brought a total of $2,549.25.

Holiday Inns of Omaha paid $4 a pound, or a total of $468, for the reserve grand champion market lamb exhibited by Andy Wirt of Parker, S.D. It was a 117-pound Suffolk wether.

The performance champion steer, shown by Kevin Forster of Smithfield, brought $1.40 a pound from Omaha Steaks International. Ross' Steak House of Omaha paid 90 cents a pound for the reserve performance steer exhibited by Randy Stille of Alta, Iowa.

In judging earlier Wednesday, Miss Johnson's Limousin-Herford was named the champion in the market heifer division and Lu Ann Kreikemeier of Cuming County had the over-all champion in the catch-a-calf competition.

Val Eberspacher of Beaver Crossing was named the champion market beef showman.

'Nashville of the North' is man's hope for Omaha

Omaha (UPI) — A veteran Omaha radio producer's dream of making Omaha a "Nashville of the North" may get off the ground next month.

Joseph "Jolly Joe" Martin said he has obtained downtown Omaha's Music Box Auditorium, where he hopes regional music talent will give birth to the "National Omaha Opry."

"We hope to form a stable of talent and start a northern opry in competition with Nashville," Martin said. "There's no more room in the Inn at Nashville. They have the talent locked in."

Martin hopes enough talent will show up for auditions Oct. 9 so he can begin "what we hope will be an every Saturday night affair" Oct. 22.

"The auditions are for anyone in the region who wants to come in," Martin said. "It's a good chance for Midwestern talent to get exposed to radio and the public.

Martin said the Music Box was picked because it is the "most nostalgic facility we could find. It was built in 1927 and is similar to the Ryman Auditorium in Nashville."

"The music box still remains in perfect condition," Martin said. "It's the typical spot to put on a country show."

Martin said downtown business interests have expressed hope the project will succeed "because it will bring people back into downtown Omaha."

"We hope we can broadcast our opry on an Omaha radio station," Martin said, "and eventually go on a network of stations.

"All we have to do is get it off the ground."

Indian broadcasting consortium formed

By Harry Jackson
Star Staff Writer

The dictionary defines a consortium as an alliance of firms in a common venture.

Native Americans have one now with the goal of better resources and production in public broadcasting.

The Native American Public Broadcasting Consortium Inc. (NAPBC), headquartered in Lincoln, is comprised of 72 public television stations.

The consortium's first official board of director's meeting ended Thursday with 14 members setting three priorities:

— Establish a videotape and film library of Native American programs.

— Encourage more consortium memberships.

— Begin an information campaign to reach nonmember stations and agencies.

Frank Blithe, who's been executive director since the program began about a month ago, will be running the show.

Admitting the consortium has been rather quiet until now, being housed and staffed in the basement of the Educational Television Center at 1800 N. 33, Blithe said now the program is going to start getting noisy.

"We were quiet for awhile, but that was because we wanted to be sure of the funding," Blith said. "Since we got it, we'll be letting more people know that we're here."

The funding, $103,113 for two years, will take care of the executive director's salary, the salary for a secretary, and in five more months, an assistant director.

In the meantime, Blithe does it all himself.

But he's used to administrative work, he said. A former chairman of the consortium board, he came to the program from KAET-TV, a public broadcasting station in Phoenix where he was operations manager.

Lincoln got the nod for the consortium's location because of its location and the cooperation of the ETV network here.

"It's a national organization and Lincoln is centrally located," Blithe said.

After the program is in full swing, its job will be to aid in production of programs about Native Americans, be a clearing house for Native American production staff, and an advisor for inquiries concerning Native American issues.

'Fortune' shines on I-80 art work

Nebraska's controversial Interstate 80 sculpture project has made headlines again, this time in the October issue of Fortune magazine.

Fortune writer Marilyn Wellemeyer, in an article entitled "Boulevard to a Fuller Life," spends two pages lauding the project and the contributions of Harry Seward, chairman of Banker's Life Nebraska and Willis Strauss, chairman of Northern Natural Gas, both of whom raised money for the project.

"Eight of the ten sculptures commissioned for highway rest stops thrust forth from the plains in avant-garde expressions of exuberance," the article says.

"As it turned out, the artists forged their works in the first of public controversy," it continues. One newspaper received "more letters on the subject than it had on Watergate. Fund raising came to a grinding halt while the state legislature held hearings to determine whether to accept and maintain the huge works."

Art Thompson of Lincoln, project director, said he is pleased by the recent article. It's indicative of the lasting effect the entire project has had on the whole state, he added.

Omaha bank robber doesn't get far away

Omaha (AP) — A man who allegedly robbed the Omaha National Bank of $1,156 Thursday was arrested eight blocks away within five minutes, police said.

Police said the man pressed a knife-like instrument gainst the neck of a regular bank customer and demanded money from a teller.

Police Detective Duane Pavel said there apparently was some delay before the robber got his money because the teller froze as the man screamed that he would kill the customer in front of him if he did not get the cash.

Teller manager Bill Legenza ran over to the window and told the teller to give the robber money. The man then fled, dropping some of the bills on the bank floor.

But he was captured eight blocks away by Police Officer Joseph Cogan, who said that as he pulled up in front of the bank, one of the bank employes jumped into the patrol car and pointed out the suspect running away from the bank.

Cogan said he drove eight blocks before cornering the man, jumped out at the patrol car and arrested him.

Boyfriend is murder suspect

Omaha (AP) — A 27-year-old Omaha man was arrested Thursday in connection with the stabbing death of a woman police said was his girlfriend.

Officers said the man was booked on suspicion of first degree murder in the death of Jewel Falkner, 40, who was dead when police arrived at her houme around 2 a.m. Police said she had been stabbed more than 20 times.

Police said they were called by Mrs. Falkner's boyfriend, who said he returned home at 1:30 a.m. and found her dead. After questioning and further investigation, the man was arrested.

Youth accused of robbery

A 16-year-old Lincoln High School youth has been referred to Lancaster County juvenile authorities after he allegedly robbed a classmate of some bus tokens in an incident on the school grounds Wednesday afternoon.

Police said the victim, also 16, told them the alleged attacker hit him several times and took his bus tokens when he discovered the youth had no money.

Police are also investigating the Tuesday assault of another Lincoln High student, a 15-year-old girl, who told police a 17-year-old male hit her several times during an early evening assault.

Education official raps attack on sex ed movie

Associated Press

Paul Belz, executive secretary of the Nebraska State Education Association, charged Thursday a reactionary group is using demagoguery in attempts to take over the state's education system.

Belz, head of the Nebraska organization representing teachers, made his comments editorially in the NSEA "Ed News" publication against S. H. Brauer Jr., and Don Lienemann and their recent attack on a sex education film.

"We haven't seen the film," wrote Belz. "It might very well be that this father of four daughters, who has yet to see his first "R" rated movie, would find it extremely objectionable.

"But that's not the point. The point is that a reactionary group is trying to take over the state's system of education. It's demagoguary at its worst."

Brauer, lobbyist for the rural-oriented Nebraska School Improvement Association, and Lienemann, State Board of Education member, last week stirred furor when they had the state board of education view the sex education film.

Brauer and Lienemann enlisted the aid of Gov. J. James Exon before taking the film before the board, showing it to him and eliciting a comment that it was shocking.

After the board refused to intervene in the Wayne School District where the film had been shown once to senior girls, Exon said the board was weak.

"In truth the state board has never stood so tall," Belz said. "The majority refused to panic in the face of emotion-laden demands that the board turn suddenly dictatorial."

Belz noted that when Brauer was pleading with Nebraskans to contribute to Lienemann's campaign for the state board, Brauer billed Lienemann as a champion of local school control.

"It was Brauer who propelled Lienemann into office with his charges of state department interference in local matters," Belz said, adding it was Lienemann who made the Wayne case a statewide incident.

Trial date set for 2 inmates accused of escape attempt

An Oct. 17 trial has been set in Lancaster County District Court for two inmates involved in an abortive June 27th jailbreak attempt at the Lincoln city jail.

Robert Bessent, 23, and Robert Parker, 24, have been charged with two counts each of being an inmate detaining another and use of a weapon to commit a felony. Judge William Hastings set the trial date after a court appearance by th pair Thursday morning during which they both pleaded not guilty.

Deputy Public Defender Tom Hagel said there is "no question they will not go to trial at that time." He indicated that his office is considering askng for "changes in venue and jurisdiction in the matter."

The pair were sentenced to three years each in U.S. District Court in Lincoln Wednesday afternoon on federal charges that they detained a deputy federal marshal, Jack Douglas, during the jailbreak attempt. Douglas was in the city jail delivering clothes to a federal prisoner at the time of the incident.

Hagel asked the federal court to perform psychological tests on the pair before sentencing, but Judge Warren Urbom denied the request on the grounds that the state would probably order such examinations.

Bessent is currently being held, as a city jail prisoner, in the psychiatric unit of Lincoln General Hospital, serving a 35-day sentence for an assault in the city jail. He also faces 3-4 years in the Nebraska Penal Complex on charges of armed robbery in an incident at the Congress Inn earlier this year.

Parker is in the city jail facing charges of federal grand larceny, as well as the jailbreak charges. Both face 3-10 years in the penal complex on the weapons charge and 10-50 years on state charges of being an inmate detaining another. Bond for the pair is set at $50,000.

Innocents mark 75th anniversary

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Innocents Society will observe its 75th anniversary Oct. 1.

The celebration will be combined with the Innocents Alumni Association meeting at the Cornhusker Hotel, 301 S. 13th St. The society is a university-wide honor and service organization.

The alumni program begins with a hospitality room and registration Friday from 5 to 8 p.m. A business meeting is scheduled for Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to noon. A banquet Saturday night will feature former "Cornshucks" editor Frank Jacobs, class of 1951. Jacobs is now a television and magazine writer.

Exon urges change in 160-acre limit

Associated Press

Gov. J. James Exon is urging Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus to support allowing ownership of more than 160 acres per person of land irrigated by Bureau of Reclamation projects.

Exon, in a letter dated Tuesday but released Thursday, said Andrus' enforcement of a 1902 law limiting ownership to 160 acres was laudable in concept as protection of family farming, but didn't recognize size needs.

"At that time, 160 acres was a lot of land; this is not so today in many areas of this nation, including Nebraska," Exon wrote.

"Therefore, while I endorse your efforts, I would suggest that some upward adjustment be made in the 160 acre limit per person, or 320 acres per farm couple, in at least some states such as Nebraska, and others in the west and midwest where the average farmer has found himself in need of much more land than was necessary way back in 1910 . . ."

Exon sought legislative changes by Congress in the amount of acreage available in those instances where the limit "has been outmoded by more modern demands."

NOTICE OF HEARING

Pursuant to the provisions of section 71-2042 and of Chapter 84, article 9, Reissue Revised Statutes of Nebraska, 1943, notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be held by the Board of Examiners in Nursing Home Administration of the State of Nebraska on Wednesday, October 12, 1977, beginning at 2:00 p.m., in the Department of Health Conference Room, third floor, southwest corner, Nebraska State Office Building, 301 Centennial Mall South, Lincoln, Nebraska, for the purpose of considering the adoption of proposed amendments to the STANDARDS FOR LICENSURE FOR ADMINISTRATORS OF HOMES FOR THE AGED OR INFIRM. These proposed amendments contain provisions concerning increased requirements that an applicant for licensure as a nursing home administrator must possess in order to receive initial licensure: (1) attainment of a minimum of six months training and experience, rather than the current three months, in the 9-Point Core of Knowledge Plan, rather than the current 7-Point Plan, encompassing applicable standards of environmental health and safety, local health and safety regulations, general administration, psychology of patient care, principles of medical care, personal and social care, therapeutic and supportive care and services in long term care, departmental organization and management, and community interrelationships. Such training and experience must be in a licensed skilled nursing facility, intermediate care facility one, or intermediate care facility two under the direct supervision of a practicing licensed nursing home administrator who has three years experience as an administrator and has completed a preceptor training course offered by the Board, provided that such 960 hours of training and experience is completed no more than one year prior to application for examination. Before such training, the prospective intern or trainee must submit to the Board an Enrollment Declaration demonstrating the completion of the educational requirements and a copy of an agreement between the preceptor and the intern or trainee for at least 960 hours training — 40 hours per week for not less than 6 nor more than 12 months. At the end of every 160 hours or each month of training, both parties must file a progress report with the Board; except that (2) on and after July 1, 1980, attainment of at least an Associate Degree in long term care administration, allied health, or human services including, but not limited to, (a) business or public administration, (b) nursing, (c) health care administration, (d) public health administration, OR (e) institutional management is required rather than the previous training and experience described in (1). The educational content for such an approved Associate Degree shall consist of at least 60 to 64 credit hours and shall include at least a 2 credit hour course in each of the following: (a) general administration, (b) social gerontology, (c) health problems of the aged, (d) patient services and care, (e) health and social service delivery systems, (f) seminar in contemporary developments in aging, and (g) field experience. In lieu of the requirements in (1) or (2), an applicant may fulfill requirements by (3) obtaining a Bachelor of Science degree in Health Services Administration with concentration in Long Term Care Administration from the University of Nebraska Medical Center.

Completion of both the educational and the training requirements shall be a prerequisite for application for the state examination for licensure. Proposed amendments also provide that licenses which have expired as a result of nonpayment of license renewal fees or lack of fulfillment of the continuing education requirements may be reinstated only upon payment of past fees due as well as the current fee and completion of 25 hours of continuing education in addition to the statutory requirement of 25 hours.

Copies of these proposed amendments are available from:

ORDINANCE NO. 12106

AN ORDINANCE amending Section 10.60.250 and 10.60.260 relating to the location of automobile pound and designation of location for placement of impounded vehicles.

BE IT ORDAINED by the City Council of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska:

Section 1. That Section 10.60.250 of the Lincoln Municipal Code be amended to read as follows:

10.60.250 ESTABLISHMENT OF AUTOMOBILE POUND. The MAYOR is hereby empowered and directed to locate the AUTOMOBILE pound AND TO DESIGNATE ANY OTHER LOCATIONS AS MAY BE CONTRACTED FOR BY THE CITY FOR THE PLACEMENT OF IMPOUNDED VEHICLES where and as may seem appropriate for said purpose and as may be necessary to accommodate the vehicles impounded. THE MAYOR may change the location OF THE AUTOMOBILE POUND OR LOCATION DESIGNATED FOR THE PLACEMENT OF IMPOUNDED VEHICLES AS MAY SEEM APPROPRIATE FOR SAID PURPOSE AND AS MAY BE NECESSARY TO ACCOMMODATE THE VEHICLES IMPOUNDED. THE CITY MAY ENTER INTO A CONTRACT WITH PRIVATE PERSONS, FIRMS AND CORPORATIONS FOR THE TOWING OF SUCH IMPOUNDED VEHICLES AND ANY OTHER VEHICLES FOUND TO BE IN VIOLATION OF THE ORDINANCES OF THE CITY OF LINCOLN.

Section 2. That Section 10.60.260 of the Lincoln Municipal Code be amended to read as follows:

10.60.260 IMPOUNDING VEHICLES — FEE FOR RELEASE. Whenever any vehicle is found by a police officer parked or left standing in the streets, alleys, public ways or parking facilities or other public places of the city, which has previously been in violation of, or which is at present in violation of, the ordinances of the city, the police officer may remove and convey the vehicle by means of towing it, or otherwise, to the automobile pound, OR SUCH POLICE OFFICER MAY REMOVE SAID VEHICLE OR ORDER THAT SAID VEHICLE BE TOWED TO THE LOCATION CONTRACTED FOR BY THE CITY FOR THE PLACEMENT OF IMPOUNDED VEHICLES; and thereupon the vehicle shall not be discharged or removed from the AUTOMOBILE pound, OR SUCH LOCATION AS MAY HAVE BEEN CONTRACTED FOR BY THE CITY FOR THE PLACEMENT OF IMPOUNDED VEHICLES, except upon payment by the owner, driver, or operator of such vehicle of a TOWING AND STORAGE fee AS ESTABLISHED BY RESOLUTION OF THE CITY COUNCIL IF SUCH VEHICLE IS HELD IN THE AUTOMOBILE POUND OF THE CITY OF LINCOLN. IN THE CASE WHEN SUCH VEHICLE IS TOWED OR REMOVED TO A LOCATION CONTRACTED FOR BY THE CITY FOR THE PLACEMENT OF IMPOUNDED VEHICLES AND THEN, IN THAT EVENT, SAID OWNER, DRIVER OR OPERATOR SHALL PAY SUCH TOWING FEES AND STORAGE COSTS AS MAY BE ESTABLISHED BY A CONTRACT BETWEEN THE CITY OF LINCOLN AND SUCH PERSON, FIRM OR CORPORATION OPERATING SUCH FACILITY. When the owner, driver, or OPERATOR of the vehicle so impounded presents himself at the AUTOMOBILE pound AT AT SUCH FACILITY CONTRACTED FOR BY THE CITY FOR THE PLACEMENT OF IMPOUNDED VEHICLES, to claim his vehicle, it shall be the duty of the person in charge to inform the owner, driver, or OPERATOR of the nature and circumstances of the violation FOR which the vehicle was impounded. If such person is found NOT guilty by the court upon such charges, THE CITY SHALL REFUND TO SUCH PERSON THE FEES PAID BY SUCH PERSON.

Section 3. That Sections 10.60.250 and 10.60.260 of the Lincoln Municipal Code as hitherto existing and all ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 4. That this ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication according to law.

Sooners picked to romp in conference opener

Virgil Parker Sports Editor

Oklahoma and Kansas get a one-week jump on the rest of the league when the two teams tangle in a Big Eight Conference game this weekend in Norman.

Flying high after a one-point victory over Ohio State last Saturday, the Sooners should have little trouble grabbing a league lead which may be tough for the other seven conference members to take away from them — especially if quarterback Thomas Lott is recovered and back to direct the wishbone attack.

Surprisingly, the latest Big Eight statistics don't show Oklahoma at the top in very many categories. Oklahoma State has the best total offense and Colorado the top total defensive team.

But OU leads where it counts — scoring. The Sooners have tallied 116 points in three games.

When it comes to individuals, Oklahoma's single leader is field goal kicker Uwe Von Schamann, who is a perfect six-for-six, including the game-winner against the Buckeyes.

The Sooners won't need a field goal to determine the outcome against Kansas. From here it looks like OKLAHOMA 42, KANSAS 7.

Other Big Eight teams

Nebraska 38, Indiana 17 — The Huskers have the offense rolling but the Hoosiers have also moved the ball well against everybody. Looks like one of those crowd-pleasing, high-scoring affairs. Especially pleasing to the partisan fans, with Nebraska a comfortable winner.

Colorado 35, Army 14 — May not be quite this close. The Buffs have scored 42 in each of their last two games. Army has tallied at least 27 in every game, but the Cadets haven't played anybody of Colorado's stature.

Iowa State 28, Dayton 7 — Looks like a real patsy for the Cyclones, but don't sell Dayton too short. Dayton lost to Miami of Ohio by a narrow, 26-23 count. Miami is the same team which edged Indiana by one, a team that knocked off LSU. Dayton won its other two tests this year.

Oklahoma State 28, Florida State 17 — Another showcase opportunity for Terry Miller, who has averaged 160 yards in each of his three games to date. Florida State could be tough, however. They beat Southern Mississippi, which in turn topped Auburn and Ole Miss, the team which beat Notre Dame.

Mississippi State 24, Kansas State 7 — Mississippi State beat North Texas State and Washington before dropping a two-point decision to Florida. That's bad news for the Wildcats.

Arizona State 21, Missouri 14 — Nebraska found out it's tough to beat the Sun Devils in Tempe. Arizona State, after a bad season last fall, has bounced back. The Sun Devils are 2-0 right now. Missouri is 0-3. This could be 0-4, which will put Tiger coach Al Onofrio on very shakey ground.

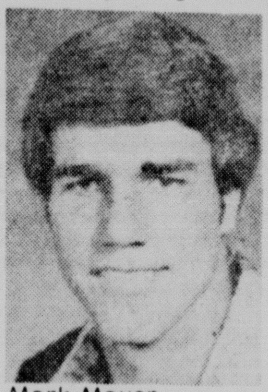
QB battle for frosh?

By Dave Sittler
Staff Sports Writer

Tagge-Brownson, Runty-Humm, Ferragamo-Luck, Sorley-Garcia, Mauer-Michaelson . . . who, Mauer-Michaelson?

Any Big Red fan will tell you without hesitation who the first four name combinations belong to — some of the finest quarterback duos in Nebraska football history. But Mauer and Michaelson?

While it may be a wee bit early to put them in the same class as Jerry Tagge, Van Brownson, Dave Humm, Steve Runty, Vince Ferragamo, Terry Luck, Randy Garcia and Tom Sorley, keep the names Mark Mauer and Steve Michaelson penciled in your Big Red notebook.



Mark Mauer
. . . seeks top spot

Steve Michaelson
. . . wants top job

The two are currently sharing the No. 1 quarterbacking job on the Nebraska freshmen team. And there seems to be a quiet confidence that Mauer and Michaelson have the talent to play football for Nebraska in the not too distant future.

The pair of signal-callers will get their first taste of collegiate action next week, when the frosh will open its belated 1977 football season.

Scheduled to open last week at Kansas State, in a game that was dropped at the last moment, Coach Guy Ingles' Nebraska yearlings will open Monday in Des Moines against Drake University at 1:30 p.m.

Ingles has said the difference between Mauer and Michaelson is minute that he will probably wait until the day of the game before selecting a starter.

"They both have a lot of talent and will see a lot of action for us," Ingles said.

Mauer, a 6-2, 197-pounder from St. Paul, Minn., had the size to also play linebacker at Harding High School in St. Paul where he was coached by his father, Ken Mauer. An all-around athlete, Mauer was also drafted by the Minnesota Twins as a catcher.

Michaelson, a 6-1, 205-pounder, was talented enough to earn three letters for Coach John Osborne as Ralston High School. He was a runaway winner as quarterback on the Sunday Journal and Star all-state team.

Are the two bothered by the fact they apparently are destined to battle each other for the next four years?

"No," Mauer said. "It's great competition and you can't beat it. Of course, if you're playing it's easy to say a situation like this is okay. It might be a little tougher if you are on the bench."

Michaelson responded by saying, "anywhere you go, you're going to have competition and find a lot of people fighting for the same job. I expected it when I came here."

Michaelson was aware Nebraska was recruiting the talented Mauer, but he wouldn't have signed with another school if the Huskers had signed Joe Namath.

"I've wanted to play here since I was a little kid," Michaelson said. "So I was coming no matter who else was signed."

It didn't take Mauer very long to select Nebraska, either. Although several major colleges were after him, he had always been impressed with the Nebraska system and jumped at the chance when the Husker coaches came calling.

Mauer still has designs on playing baseball someday, but he said, "I decided to go with football now because of my love for the game and my desire to get an education. An education is very important to me."

Mauer got off to an auspicious start at Nebraska. The first day of practice he sprained his ankle and was sidelined for two weeks.

"Boy, was that embarrassing," Mauer said.

Fully recovered, Mauer is back battling Michaelson for the starting job. Both quarterbacks admitted the transition from high school to college football has not been easy.

Ingles' entire squad is itchy to play someone beside themselves. Practicing since mid-August, Ingles said his team is "in the mood to play a game."

Ingles will not have one freshman on his squad for Monday's tilt. Fullback Andra Franklin will remain with varsity where he's been all season.

However, Bobby Marks (monster) and Sammy Sims (cornerback), both who have been with the varsity this season, are expected to make the trip to Des Moines.

Ingles has expressed satisfaction in his defensive line which includes tackles Peter Boll (6-7, 258) from Chattanooga, Tenn., and Dan Hurley (6-2, 225) from Omaha and middle guard Curt Hineline (6-3, 226) out of Bellevue, Wash.

Nebraska's freshmen team once again is dominated by walkons. Limited to just 30 scholarships, the squad of 95 is bolastered by 65 non-scholarship players.

Demonstrating the strehgth of Nebraska's walkon program, the Huskers have a walkon from Greece. I-back Anthony Steels, who also lists Sacramento, Calif., as home, spent the last couple of years in Greece with his father who is in the service.

"I don't know how he heard about us," Ingles said.

The frosh also have two walkons from New York. Tackle Nick Scurra is from Brooklyn and kicker Dave Brumagen is from Ft. Edward, N.Y.

Offense displeases Osborne

By Dave Sittler
Staff Sports Writer

Tom Osborne pulled on his game face a couple of days early.

The scowl and concern that usually crosses the Nebraska coach's face each Saturday, surfaced Thursday afternoon.

"I'm not very happy right now," Osborne said moments after whistling a halt to the Huskers' 90-minute workout in sweatclothes at Memorial Stadium.

What had Osborne hot under the collar was a lackluster performance by his top offensive unit. Running non-contact plays against the No. 3 defense, the offense sputtered several times, much to Osborne's chagrin.

"They better wake up," Osborne said. "I don't know what's wrong with them, but I didn't like the way they practiced today."

Asked if he thought his squad was mentally prepared for Saturday's encounter with Indiana, Osborne snapped, "I don't know. I've given up trying to figure out who is ready and who isn't. I think that's overrated. I think they are ready, but who knows. They better snap to it if they want to win."

Osborne admitted that he had another thing on his mind besides his squad's attitude.

"I'm just as concerned about the fans," he said. "We need their support. But, according to the general attitude, they (fans) are going to come in here expecting the game to be an easy one. The fans can make a big difference.

"I know the opinion around the state is that it should be an easy game and that's not conducive to a great effort."

Pointing out that he's aware the crowd attitude isn't worth a nickel if the team isn't prepared, Osborne said he is personally concerned about Indiana.

He noted that Indiana Sports Information Director Tom Miller had said the Hooisers appear to be an up and down team this season, and this is the week for the 1-2 Indiana club to be up.

"I think there is a cyclic thing in football," Osborne said. "And I'm sure Indiana will be up when they come in here and will give a great effort."

In the injury department, Osborne said I-back Rick Berns was still questionable with a hip pointer.

Others who he said would probably start but a decision would not be made until Saturday because of bumps and bruises included: Monte Anthony (shoulder), Rene Anderson (ankle), Jim Pillen (hip) and Greg Jorgensen (shoulder).

Quarterback Jeff Quinn is definitely out with an injury to his left leg. Jorgensen appeared to be the most serious of the questionable starters.

Osborne said if Jorgensen was unable to go, the Husker co-captain's offensive left guard spot would be handled by junior Lawrence Cooley.

Osborne also revealed that sophomore defensive end Lee Atkins, a sophomore defensive end from San Angelo, Tex., had quit the team.

"He (Atkins) decided he didn't want to play football anymore," Osborne said of the 6-1, 195-pounder who was on scholarship. Atkins had been running with the lower units.

Pius X-Ryan game officially 'on'

By Randy York
Prep Sports Editor

The Class B football showdown of the season will be played at Lincoln Pius X Friday night.

Omaha Ryan coach Lyn Darrell confirmed his team's participation after his varsity squad members were checked by a doctor Thursday afternoon.

A viral infection sidelining 17 players had threatened to postpone or even cause forfeiture of the fourth-ranked Ryan's date with third-ranked Pius X.

"We obviously won't be at full strength, but we'll be there with one idea in mind — to win," Darrell said. "If Pius beats us, it will be because they have a better football team."

Only one Ryan starter is considered a doubtful performer. Chuck Redlinger, the Knights' regular halfback and linebacker, did not attend classes Thursday.

"The other 32 players here had temperatures under 100. It surprised us, even though there were 11 with temperatures ranging from 99.2 to 99.8," Darrell said.

"If they all get to bed in good shape, we should be okay," he added. "We'll check them all again Friday. No one will play without a doctor's clearance.

"Preparation hurt us more than anything," Darrell said. "We didn't get to put in any new offense or defense. We've practiced all week with mostly second and third stringers, but injuries and sickness are just part of football.

Although Darrell indicated he may substitute more than usual Friday night, he plans to have most of his first team ready for extensive action.

"They want to play," he said. "This is the biggest game of the season for us."

Ryan quarterback Mike Wyskowski, the state's leading prep passer, apparently has shaken the effects of the flu. His favorite receiver, split end Bobby Lackovic, was one of the fortunate ones escaping the viral infection.

That means the pressure is the same for the Thunderbolt defense to find a way to shut down Ryan's prolific aerial game.

Responsibility will be shared, for the most part, by defensive backs Brad Zitek, Dan Murphy, Jim Fisher and Roger Petrzilka.

Weekend schedule

Friday

O. Ryan (2-2) at Pius X (3-0)
Beatrice (0-4) vs. East (2-2), Seacrest.
Northeast (4-0) at Bellevue East (3-1), KFOR.
Southeast (3-0) at North Platte (0-4).
LHS (1-3) at Scottsbluff (3-1).
(All games start at 7:30 p.m.)

"We hope to keep them guessing what defense we'll be in," Pius X coach Vince Aldrich said. "We may sit in a man-to-man a few times, then switch over to a zone. We don't want them to know."

Aldrich said his team's pass rush is equally crucial. "We've been working on it all week," he said. "We don't want to give their quarterback too long to throw."

Principals in the Thunderbolts' pass rush are defensive tackles Ken Rosberg and Joe LeDuc and defensive ends Jack Jablonski and Mike Weygint.

Ryan faces a similar defensive challenge against the high-scoring 'Bolts. "Pius is the best offensive team we've seen this year," Darrell said, rating the 'Bolts over four Metro Conference opponents. "We haven't really faced a team that can throw the ball in our first four games."

New York (AP) — Muhammad Ali's ring experience and the boxing brains of cornerman Angelo Dundee combined Thursday night to give the heavyweight champion a unanimous but tough 15-round victory over Earnie Shavers.

Ali used his left hand to jab and hook, plus his defensive ability, to hold the power-punching Shavers safely at bay through most of the fight while his corner knew exactly what was going on.

Dundee knew after 12 rounds that Ali would remain champion unless Shavers knocked him out.

The official scoring was announced on national television after each round. While the people in the Garden—including Shavers in his corner—did not know how the fight was going, Dundee did.

"I knew about the scoring," he said. "I had a shuttle who was watching the television. I never told Ali he was ahead. I didn't want him to let down."

But Dundee also knew that he didn't have to worry, that he didn't have to urge Ali to take unncecessary risks. And Ali didn't, although he was badly shaken in the final round before rallying in the closing seconds to almost put Shavers down.

Meanwhile, Shavers was given the impression by his corner that he was winning. "I thought I was ahead on points — I thought I won the fight," said Shavers, who was told by trainer Frank Luca after almost every round that he was winning.

However, Shavers didn't fight the last three rounds like a man who thought he was ahead as he shook off numbing tiredness to put pressure on the aging Ali. If he had known how the scoring was going, he might have gone all out a little sooner.

Although Dundee made good use of the televised disclosure of the scoring, he said he didn't think it should be allowed.

Shavers showed up just minutes after the fight but Ali did not appear for the post-fight news conference until almost an hour later. The champion went to his dressing room for a rub-down and changed clothes before meeting the press.

When asked why he was so late, he said, "because I'm tired. I'm almost as tired as I was in Manila after Joe Frazier," he said, referring to his 14-round stoppage of Smokin' Joe in 1975.

He said the fighter most comparable to Shavers was Frazier.

"I thought I had an easy fight," said Ali. "This man has never gone 15 rounds." The champ also said the fight proved he was in good shape. There had been concern that Ali was not training seriously for it.

"I thank the almighty Allah," said Ali, who did not say who his next opponent would be.

LSE's Fisher multitalented

By Chuck Sinclair
Prep Sports Writer

Although Vernon Fisher's appearance in the statewide Class A statistical leaders is limited to the sixth best punter and a tie for eighth among scorers, Lincoln Southeast coach Frank Solich would have a hard time working out a trade for someone of equal abilities.

If the transaction was professional, the Southeast front office might trade Fisher for a start quarterback, a punter, a top running back and a league leading safety, plus a first round draft choice for the coming year.

Since it isn't professional, Solich can just be happy with what he has, which he is.

Fisher wasn't acquired by trade to Southeast, but he did come by way of Indianola, Iowa, during the semester break last year.

A starting safety for the defending state champion Knights in the first two games this year, Fisher was thrust into the quarterback position in last weeks' 29-12 come from behind win over Columbus when Southeast's starter, Mike Huffer, was sidelined with torn cartilage in his rib cage.

Playing both ways, Fisher responded with two interceptions (moving his total to four for the season, more than any other Class A player), scored all four of Southeast's touchdowns, completed three passes for 33 yards, maintained a 37.3 punting average and rushed for 103 yards.

With Huffer's injury still keeping him out of action, Fisher will get a chance to continue to display his talents Friday night at North Platte.

"There's a lot of weight on Vern's shoulder's right now," Solice said. "But without question he has confidence in himself and the team has confidence in him. Nobody looks at it like he's just stepping in.

"We're going to start him both ways against North Platte," Solich added. 'We're planning on Scott Grossenbach helping out at safety, but Vern has played so well at middle safety, we'd like to use him as much as we can.

"He's in pretty good physical condition and he's a very heady athlete," Solich said. "We feel real fortunate to have two quarterbacks the caliber of Mike and Vern."

Fisher's appearance on the scoring charts is a first for him, but all this points came in the Columbus game.

I'm sure Mike would have done the same sort of thing Vern did in the second half at Columbus," Solich said. "They were giving us those kinds of things. But you add together all the things that Vern accomplished and he had just a super game."

"We're afraid Mike will be lost for several weeks now," Solich said of Huffer, the state's No. 9 passer. "He can't even move without pain right now."

The rest of the Southeast team appears in good shape for Friday's trip to North Platte with Felix White (ankle) the only other doubtful performer.

In other city action, Northeast travels to Bellevue East, Lincoln High to Scottsbluff, and Pius X hosts Omaha Ryan and Lincoln East hosts Beatrice.

Baseball

Haywood Sullivan, a former major league catcher, and Edward G. "Buddy" LeRoux, a former trainer, purchased the Boston Red Sox Thursday after months of negotiations.

The sale was announced by three executors of the estate of the late Thomas A. Yawkey, who died in July of 1976 after owning the Sox for 43 years. It was reported Sullivan and LeRoux, with a group of limited partners were awarded the club for about $16 million.

Rick Sawyer, with a group of limited partners, were awarded the club for about 16 million.

Football

John Hannah and Leon Gray, two standout offensive linemen who left the New England Patriots in a contract dispute, said Thursday they would decide soon whether to return to the club, as the NFL's play-Club Relations Committee suggested.

The Chicago Bears placed veteran wide receiver John Gilliam on waivers Thursday and signed free agent tight end Chuck Bradley, formerly of the San Diego Chargers.

The Buffalo Bills Thursday signed free agent linebacker Greg Collins, the second-round draft choice of the San Francisco 49 years two years ago.

Thomas Lott, Oklahoma quarterback, will start against Kansas Saturday. He had been sidelined with a knee sprain against Ohio State.

Golf

Clifford Roberts, who helped launch the prestigious Masters Golf Tournament 43 years ago and built it into one of the top four golf events in the world, committed suicide early Thursday on the course he loved.

Peter Butler, a 45-year-old English veteran, birdied three holes in a row before the gale-force winds reached their full strength and, with a two-under-par 69, assumed solid three-stroke command Thursday in the second round of the $70,000 British Masters golf tournament.

Other sports

Veteran Boston Celtic forward Steve Kuberski has a broken right wrist and will be out of action for at least five weeks, the team announced Thursday.

Alfredo Evangelista, who lost a 15-round decision to Muhammad Ali in the champion's last title defense in May, overcame a 102-degree fever to score an impressive eighth-round knockout of Puerto Rican Pedro Soto in a preliminary to the Ali-Earnie Shavers fight Thursday night.

Shavers: they robbed Me

New York (AP) — "They robbed me. They robbed me."

Those were the words of heavyweight challenger Earnie Shavers Thursday night after losing a unanimous 15-round decision to champion Muhammad Ali, a decision Shavers was sure he had won.

"I thought I was ahead on oints," said the muscular Shavers, who chased Ali for 15 rounds but never caught him according to thethree ring officials, who gave the decision to Ali 9-6, 9-6 and 9-5-1.

"I won eight or nine rounds," said Shavers. "My corner told me I was winning."

If that was true, it was a tactical error on the part of Shavers' handlers. The judges' scores were being announced after each round on the telecast of the fight, and Shavers' team should have known the right score.

The hard'hitting Shavers, who never had gone past 10 rounds in his previous 60 fights, was proud of going the 15-round distance and staying on his feet the whole time.

"I was a little tired," said the 33-year-old Shavers, who had won 52 of his 54 victories by knockouts, the best knockout percentage in heavyweight history.

"But Ali was tired too. I did it (going 15 rounds). I was there. I never hit him real hard. I was trying to save myself," said Shavers.

The knock on Shavers going into this fight, his first crack at the heavyweight title, was a lack of endurance. However, he improved his stamina by boxing 225 rounds in training and putting up a smart, tactical fight.

Twice in the sixth round, Ali attempted to employ his rope-a-dope trick, the tactic that effectively tired and weakened George Foreman in their title fight in Zaire. But Shavers, from Warren, Ohio, just walked to the opposite end of the ring.

In the seventh round, when Ali walked to the ropes, Shavers walked to the ropes at the opposite side of the ring.

Shavers' most effective opposite weapon was a powerful overhand right that seemed to catch Ali and stagger him in the second round.

"I think I hit him a couple of times and hurt him," said Shavers. "He hit me a couple of good shots, but he never hurt me bad."

Shavers appeared most in danger in the final seconds of the fight, when Ali came on with a flurry and staggered the challenger, who weighed 211¼ pounds.

But despite his final-round troubles, the man Ali dubbed "Acorn" because of his shaven head, was not particularly impressed with the heavyweight champion.

"Tonight he was a bad one (champion)," said Shavers. "He didn't win the fight. I won the fight."

USC to face WSU

United Press International

Top-ranked Southern California puts the nation's longest winning streak — 14 games — on the line Friday night when the trojans host Washington State and its "throwin' Samoan," quarterback Jack Thompson.

The Trojans (3-0) routed Texas Christian, 51-0, in their last outing, but that staggering margin isn't enough to scare the Cougars who already have upset Nebraska, 19-10, and Michigan State, 23-21.

Thompson was a sophomore last year when he completed 26 of 50 passes for 340 yards in a 23-14 loss to Southern Cal, a game the Trojans won when Rickey Bell ran for a Pac-8 record 347 yards.

"Our defense hasn't played a great offensive team yet," says USC coach John Robinson, "but they're gonna get tested Friday night."

Second-ranked Oklahoma, having wrecked Ohio State's bid for an unbeaten season, goes for another kind of record Saturday. The Sooners can tie their own NCAA mark of scoring in 123 consecutive games the first time they score against Kansas.

Oklahoma set the original record over an 11-year stretch, from 1946 until it was shut out by Notre Dame in 1957. The current skein started in 1966.

The Sooners beat Ohio State, 29-28, last Saturday on Uwe von Schamann's 41-yard field goal with six seconds left. Oklahoma may be forced to rely on Schamann's toe again against Kansas since two of its big ground gainers are hobbled by injuries — Billy Sims with an aching Achilles tendon and Elvis Peacock with a bruised leg.

No. 3 Michigan led the nation in scoring last year and is averaging 24 points a game this season as the Wolverines take on their toughest foe of the season to date, fifth-ranked Texas A & M.

"We have been sporadic," admits Michigan coach Bo Schembechler."We are making too many mistakes in key situations and that's just not characteristic of Michigan teams."

Texas A & M has faced two other intersectional foes this season and beaten both — Kansas and Virginia Tech.

Among the other top 10 teams, fourth-ranked Penn State tackles Kentucky, No. 6 Colorado faces Army, seventh-rated Ohio State seeks to recoup against Southern Methodist, No. 8 Texas meets Rice, No. 9 Florida hooks up with LSU and 10th ranked Nebraska plays Indiana.

Indians delay Yankee title

Associated Press

The Cleveland Indians delayed New York's pennant-clinching party Thursday night with a 4-1 victory over the Yankees behind Wayne Garland's six-hitter.

As a result of the loss, and victories by the Baltimore Orioles and Boston Red Sox, the Yankees' "magic number" for clinching the American League East title remained at one.

With three games left in the regular season, the Yankees lead the Orioles and Red Sox by three games and need to win only one of three weekend home games against Detroit to capture their second consecutive division title.

Meanwhile, the Orioles and Red Sox meet three times in Boston and the loser of Friday night's game will be eliminated no matter what the Yankees do.

Garland, one of last winter's free agents who signed a 10-year contract with Cleveland, posted his 13th triumph in 32 decisions and took some solace after a disastrous campaign by averting a 20th setback.

Baltimore rookie Eddie Murray droye in four runs and Ken Singleton had a two-run homer as Rudy May won his 18th game with a 6-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

In a day game, the Red Sox stayed mathematically alive in the East with a 7-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays as Jim Rice drove in four runs with a homer and a sacrifice fly.

In other American League action, Larry Gura and Doug Bird combined on a seven-hitter and the Kansas City Royals pounded out 14 hits en route to a 6-3 victory over the California Angels. Julio Cruz' run-scoring single in the ninth inning gave the Seattle Mariners a 2-1 victory over the Texas Rangers.

In the National League, Larry Parrish's two-run single capped a four-run, first-inning that enabled the Montreal Expos to spoil Steve Carlton's bid for his 24th victory with a 7-2 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Phil Garner drove in three runs with two singles and a triple and scored another as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the New York Mets 5-2 behind Terry Forster and Kent Tekulve.

In a late game on the West Coast, Houston visited Los Angeles.

VandeHoef ties Holmes' record

Daryl VandeHoef tied the record for the front nine at Holmes Park Thursday afternoon.

The record is 31. VandeHoef had used up 30 strokes on the first eight holes. He gained the tie by knocking his two-iron shot into the cup on the 210-yard ninth hole.

The ace was witnessed by playing partners Gene Chadwell, Don Palmer and Otto Benner.

VandeHoef ended the day with a two-under-par round of 70.

Fremont gains volleyball win

Fremont nipped Lincoln Northeast, 17-15, in the first game and went on to defeat the Rockets in three sets Thursday night at the Northeast gym. LNE won the middle game, 15-11, but lost the finale, 6-15.

Peggy Loos led the scoring for Northeast, now 2-4 on the season. The Rockets will host Southeast Tuesday.

Fremont won the reserve match in two games.

Purina Co. buys arena

St. Louis (AP) — Ralston Purina Co., which purchased the St. Louis Blues National Hockey League team July 27, announced Thursday that it has also purchased the Arena, in which the Blues play.

R. Hal Dean, board chairman of Ralston, told a news conference his firm already has spent about $500,000 in cleaning and on improvements to the building which will now be known as the checkerdome.

Dean said estimates are being sought to determine how much it would cost to air condition the building and turn it into an all-season facility.

Dean also said the company is looking into the possibility of moving a World Team Tennis franchise into the Arena.

NCAA cites 4 Bluejays

Omaha (UPI) — Creighton University said Thursday night four of its varsity basketball players have been disciplined by the NCAA for illegal participation in a basketball tournament this summer.

Athletic Director-Coach Tom Apke said senior Kevin Kuehl and junior John C. Johnson, both of Omaha, would be ineligible for four games while senior Jerry Newell of Chicago would miss three games and junior David Wesley, Omaha, would be ineligible for one game.

The four were among seven collegiate basketball players involved in the ineligible status investigation by the NCAA for participating in a July Creighton Preparatory School basketball tournament in Omaha.

The other players disclipined by the NCAA were Clayton Bullard of the University of Colorado, Nate Phillips of Michigan State and Hughes Wilcox, formerly of Southwest Missouri, who was planning to enroll at the University of Kansas.

Kansas preps hit by injuries

Bogue, Kan. (AP) — Bogue, the champion Kansas state eight-man high school football team last year, recruited two girls to keep the team going when not enough boys went out for football this year. But now the team has folded because injuries again reduced the squad to seven.

Only seven boys went out for football this fall and the girls, Tina Irby and Tammy Thompson, joined the squad to keep the team alive.

They played three games for Bogue, a town of 256, breaking the tradition of all-male high school football teams.

They both became starters when Tina's cousin, Danny Irby, was injured in a game against Tipton High School.

Then Ricky Johnson dislocated his hip in a game against Triplains High of Winona, Kan.

Coach Dick Robinson said Wednesday that Johnson would be out of action for three months.

"Some want to keep playing," the coach said. "Others say it's just as well we quit now."

Passing keys Peru offense

By Ken Hambleton
Staff Sports Writer

Finally, Peru State has a passing game.

As a matter of fact the Bobcats have the best passing in the state colleges with a 203-yards per game average. But the problem has been the running game, usually the strongest part of Peru's offense.

Bobcat coach Jerry Joy, whose team is 1-2, rolled up 361 yards in losing to Midland and 343 yards in topping Tarkio, which topped Doane and Concordia.

"We're just depending on the big play too much and we haven't put together the long drive type of game yet," Joy said.

Junior quarterback Mark Fletcher and freshman Neil Laxdal have shared duties, while senior Gary Rosenbeck, the leading rusher and scorer the past two years, and Dale Patton fill the backfield.

"We've gotten a boost from two new offensive line people, Fred Marisett, (5-11, 225) and Mike Larson, (6-3, 250-pounds) at right guard and tackle," said Joy, referring to Iowa State transfer Larsen and senior Marisett, who turned out for Peru's team this year.

"We've just had the fumbles and penalties that have kept us from getting across the goal line," said Joy, whose club hosts Nebraska Wesleyan Saturday at 2 p.m.

"If we can find the running to go with our passing we'll be okay," Joy added.

Roosevelt Brown, a freshman receiver, is the leading receiver in the state with a 6-172 for a 57.3 yards per game average. Starting split end Paul McCune and senior Joe Cluey give the Bobcats, a top receiving corps.

Nebraska Wesleyan coach Harold Chaffee views the Peru game as the first in "our league" this season.

"We've played some pretty top-notch teams but we've beaten Peru the past two years and with a good game we can make it a battle again this year," said Chaffee, whose club is now 0-3.

In other top games this weekend Kearney hosts Pittsburg State of Kansas and Wayne hosts Missouri Southern in Central States Cohference games.

Last week's selections correctly picked just two of seven games dropping the season total to 15-9-2. This week's selections in bold include: Nebraska Wesleyan at Peru, 2 p.m.; Chadron at Midland, 1:30 p.m. Fremont War Memorial Stadium; Dakota Wesleyan at Dana, aft.; Tennessee Tech at UNO, 7:30 p.m.; Doane at William Jewell, Mo.; Colorado College at Hastings, aft; Pittsburg State at Kearney, aft.; Missouri Southern at Wayne, aft.

'Thoughts,' Jatski eye Forego

New York (AP) — Forego will try Saturday to become the first $2 million winner in thoroughbred racing with a victory in the Marlboro Cup Handicap, a race he won last year in an incredible finish.

Martha L. Gerry's 7-year-old gelding goes into the 1¼-mile stakes with earnings of $1,923,957, second only to the retired Kelso's $1,977,896.

If all 10 horses entered Thursday start, the fifth Marlboro Cup will be worth $282,600, with $169,560 to the winner. Forego also could pass Kelso by finishing second, which would be worth $62,172.

Forego, third under 126 pounds in the Cup in 1974 and second by a head under 129 in 1975, appeared headed for his third straight defeat in the race last year. Carrying 137 pounds, he was sixth with a quarter of a mile to go before making his patented stretch drive. But with only 20 yards left it appeared he could not catch Honest Pleasure, 119. He did, winning by a head in 2:00 on a sloppy track.

Also entered will be William Murray's Jatski, the horse of the year at Ak-Sar-Ben. The 3-year-old won the Omaha Gold Cup Prep, the Omaha Gold Cup Stakes and the President's Cup at the Omaha track.

Jatski has eight wins in 21 starts this year. He will carry 114 pounds including Sam Maple from the No. 9 post.

Private Thoughts, winner of Ak-Sar-Ben's Cornhusker Handicap, will break from the No. 2 post with Ramon Perez.

To all Federal employees:

BUY CHEAPER HEALTH CARE COVERAGE AND THERE'S ONE PLACE YOU CAN REALLY GET HURT.

Right in the old wallet. Which doesn't make much sense when you stop to think you wanted to save money in the first place. More often than not, though, you end up with an expensive mistake on your hands.

Because cheaper health care plans cost less for a reason. They often cover less. And pay less when it comes time to make a claim.

That's why the Blue Cross and Blue Shield program is worth so much—even when it costs more. It covers more.

Dollar for dollar, the high option Blue Cross and Blue Shield program is the best health care coverage you can buy.

HIGHER AND HIGHER.

That sums up the main problem with trying to save money on health care coverage. The cost of hospitalization and medical treatment has been on the rise for years. So far, the end isn't in sight.

Take the cost of surgery, for instance. As the chart shows, the total cost of common surgical procedure and required medical services has risen as much as 250% over the last ten years.

And that's why Blue Cross and Blue Shield Plans are working harder than ever with doctors and hospitals across the country. We've got to find ways to help slow down dramatically rising health care costs.

So when you buy health care coverage, take a long, hard look at Blue Cross and Blue Shield protection. You may not think the price is right today.

But when you need help, the Blue Cross and Blue Shield program is worth every dollar.

'Public indifference' obstacle to good nursing home care

Omaha (AP) — A nursing home spokesman says operators of those facilities are not getting their story across and part of the reason is "negative publicity."

The Rev. John Hoeger said in Omaha Wednesday the news media were not giving the industry a fair shake.

The Rev. Mr. Hoeger, associated director of the Evangelical Lutheran Good Samaritan Homes based at Sioux Falls, S.D., was attending the annual convention of the Nebraska Health Care Association in Omaha.

He said the publicity has had good as well as bad results.

"The biggest obstacle to good nursing home care is the indifference of the public in general," he said. "It isn't the legislators or the nursing home administrators alone who can provide good care. There must be support of the public."

He said "from all this publicity has come a public awareness of nursing homes, and I think that's good."

However, the Rev. Mr. Hoeger said he thinks the publicity "has generated unnecessary fears among people about nursing homes, and this is bad. It has made it more difficult to attract people to the profession. And it has hurt morale and given nursing homes a reputation they don't deserve."

He said developments in nursing care in the past 10 years "have been astounding." He said there is a higher degree of professonalism "and there is an extraordinary amount of dedication and loving care provided day after day."

The Rev. Mr. Hoeger said he was optimistic about the future, but the industry faces money problems. He said the Good Samaritan Homes, operator of 175 homes in four states including 25 in Nebraska, has seen the need for more money from the government.

He said Medicaid reimbursement is inadequate.

Retired NU toxicologist Hendrickson dies at 66

Omaha (AP) — Services are pending at Ansley for Merrill J. Hendrickson, who was in charge of the toxicology section of the University of Nebraska Medical Center's Pharmacology Department when he retired in July 1976.

Hendrickson, 66, was found dead in his home in Omaha Tuesday. Acting Douglas County Coroner James Keenan said an autopsy indicated Hendrickson died of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Hendrickson graduated from Kearney State College in 1937 and received a doctor of philosophy from the University of Minnesota in 1948.

Youth gets rabies treatment

Susan Clark, a 14-year-old Dawes Junior High School student, began anti-rabies treatment Thursday after being bitten by a dog Monday near Richmond Road and Hartley St.

The treatment consists of one shot per day for 14 days. If the dog is located, tested and found not to be rabid, the shots can be discontinued.

She described the dog as being brown, medium-sized, long-haired and mangy. She said the dog didn't have a collar.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert clark of 5740 Hartley St., have asked that anyone with information concerning the dog contact them or the Animal Control Center.

Garage sale proceeds to go to park fund

The Salt Valley View Neighborhood Association is planning a community-wide garage sale and auction on neighborhood land designated as park site, Sunday Oct. 2.

Pam Hoffman, of the association, said the sale would be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on land near Schoolhouse Lane and Clearview Blvd. that has been sold to the city by the Lincoln Public Schools. All proceeds from the sale will go to the fund for a park that has been planned on the site.

The park, still in the planning stages, will feature a small playground, cooking facilities and picnic tables, a hiker-biker trail and baseball and tennis playing areas, Mrs. Hoffman said.

Williams' competence to be determined

A hearing to determine if accused murderer Robert E. Williams is competent to stand trial will be held Friday morning in Lancaster County District Court.

Williams, 40, faces several charges stemming from the Aug. 11 murder of two Lincoln women, Catherine Brooks and Patricia McGarry, both 25, at Ms. McGarry's 1400 N. 44th St. apartment, and the alleged sexual assault of another Lincoln woman the same day. In addition, charges of kidnaping and assault, involving Williams' ex-wife, also are pending.

Testimony from a Lincoln and an Omaha psychiatrist, both of whom were ordered by District Judge William Hastings to examine Williams earlier this month, is expected Friday morning.

Williams faces a preliminary hearing Oct. 6 in county court on the murder charges. An Oct. 14 preliminary hearing has been scheduled in the sexual assault case and a Nov. 10 preliminary is set for the kidnap and assault charges, all in county court.

Deputy Public defender Tom Hagel, Williams' court-appointed attorney, said his office is considering asking for a change of venue, and "other legal options" in the cases.

Teachers told not to pray

Miami (AP) — Teachers in Dade County have been ordered to stop meeting on public school grounds to pray for the educational system.

Members of the Dade County School Prayer Group had been gathering periodically on their own time before classes began for the day. The practice was halted after school authorities consulted their attorney, Frank A. Howard Jr. He said such meetings violate constitutional bans on prayer in the public schools.

"I was disappointed," said a newly retired teacher, Walt Olszack, who organized a prayer group at his school. "Everyone was invited. Our Jewish principal came."

Olszack said no children participated and that no particular religion was advocated.

Howard quoted a copy of the prayer group's newsletter as saying members were "individual believers in Jesus Christ as Lord." He said the reader was addressed as "Dear Christian."

"While the Dade County School Prayer Group may claim to be open to all persons, it has labeled itself as Christian. This labeling robs it of any legitimate claim of religious neutrality," Howard said.

He added that under U.S. Supreme Court rulings, school premises should not be used without a secular purpose. He said the prayer group appears to have no purpose "that is not directly connected with religious motives."

There was no available figure on membership of the loosely organized group. A Dade County School Board spokesman said it was operating in schools in at least two of the district's areas, the northwest and south.

Attorney gets advice in TV trial

Miami (AP) — Attorney Ellis Rubin is getting unexpected help in his defense of Ronny Zamora, the teen-ager he says was driven to kill by television violence. Suggestions are pouring in from the public and other lawyers who watch televised protions of the trial each night.

"Tell him to get rid of juror No. 4," a woman telephoned Rubin's law office earlier this week after watching jury selection on Miami's public service TV channel. "I have a feeling about her," she said.

The Zamora case is the first major test of a one-year camera-in-the-courtroom experiment ordered by the Florida Supreme Court. Ironically, television also plays a part in Zamora's defense.

Zamora, 15, and Darrell Agrella, 14, are charged with the murder of Zamora's neighbor, Elinor Haggart, 83. Rubin says his client was insane because of "involuntary television intoxication."

Still cameras and one television camera have been recording each day's proceedings. Highlights of the dramatic trial are being broadcast here in competition with the regular nightly network fare, including the police shows cited by Rubin in his defense.

The trial shows are drawing an audience.

"Hey, Ellis, you're using too much eye shadow," a fellow member of the bar told the 43-year-old attorney as he was leaving the Dade County justice building this week.

But mixed with the ribbing was serious advice.

"Hey, dump juror No. 8, she's a cop's wife," one lawyer advised after watching the nightly trial coverage.

"Don't listen to him," said another, "I know police wives, they'll bend over backwards to be impartial."

Rubin's law office reports other attorneys have been calling after viewing the programs.

The prosecution has declined to say if it is getting similar, unsolicited, advice.

"I'm a lawyer, too," Rubin's associates quoted one caller as saying. "Try to keep juror No. 5. That's the kind of juror I'd like if I were trying the case."

Rubin, a flamboyant lawyer who once ran 75 miles to dramatize his fight against the televison blackouts of local pro football games, says he's delighted with the interest in the case.

"This is the first time a murder trial has been shown on TV and I believe the public is really into the case," he says. "I think it's one of the most educationally valuable things that has been done with the courts."

Rubin says he's been fighting for two years to get trials televised.

"There are two ways to look at it," he said. "Those against it argue it's an invasion of the defendant and jury's privacy, but I consider it part of the right to a free and open trial."

Johnny Carson still on top as he winds up 15 years

Los Angeles (AP)—Johnny Carson is winding up 15 years as the host of NBC's "Tonight" show and is looking forward to the next — well, who knows?

"I remember backstage the first night I did the show. I asked my manager, "What am I getting into?' " Carson said.

"He said the time will go by fast. Soon five years will pass. Then 10 years. We all laughed. No one would have bet any money in 1962 that I'd still be doing the show in 1977. Not even me."

Carson took over the "Tonight" show from Jack Paar Oct. 1, 1962.

"It was well known at that time that I was following a very emotional and controversial figure," he said. "I suppose everyone was waiting to see what would happen."

Carson, whose experience up to that time had been largely limited to game shows, took a show so closely identified with Paar and quickly built it into his own image of a comedian with a devilish, boyish charm. At more than $1 million a year, he is television's highest-paid entertainer.

Carson, who will be 52 on Oct. 23, now has gray hair and lines on his face, but the boyish charm still clings to him like the California tan acquired when he moved the show from New York five years ago.

He will celebrate his anniversary on Friday, Sept. 30, with a two-hour show featuring film clips of memorable moments from the past 15 years.

How much longer will he stay?

"I really haven't given much thought to it," he said in his office while preparing his monologue for that night's show.

"Obviously, I'm not going to do it another 10 years. Probably not even five years.

"You give up the show when the audience is no longer there or when you get bored. I'd give it up if I was third in the ratings. But we're still on top and it's still fun."

He said, "This is what television started out to be. It's spontaneous. We're on the same day we tape. We can be topical. We can pick up on something in the news. Other shows can't do that."

In recent years speculation has been rife, growing with Carson's frequent absences from the show, that he would quit or be replaced.

He said, "I've been in this business long enough to know that rumors fly all the time. I hear we're moving back to New York. I hear this person is going to replace me. The fact is that NBC has come to me to renegotiate my contract to continue on the show. I don't think they'd do that if they had somebody in the bullpen ready to go."

Football fans urged to park legally

Lincoln police have towed away 101 illegally parked vehicles belonging to Cornhusker football fans on the last three Saturdays, according to Lt. John Hewitt.

The largest number, 20, have been Omaha and Douglas County licensed cars, with 16 Lincoln and Lancaster County cars towed to the temporary impound lot at 17th and Y Sts., he said.

"People need to check a little closer that they are legally parked," he said. He urged fans to avoid parking on 16th between Vine and K, 14th St. between W and Military and 10th St. between K and R Sts.

Traffic on O St. is also a home game problem, Hewitt said. He advises fans to use the streets parallel to O since traffic on those arterials is generally lighter.

"Early arrival on game days is still the best solution," he said. The fairgrounds parking lots are open to the public at no cost and the university provides a free shuttle bus.

Astrological Forecast

By Sidney Omarr

Friday, September 30, 1977

Aquarians who led the way: Evangeline Adams, Charles Lindbergh and Gertrude Stein. Aquarius is Uranus, number 11, surprise, aviation, electricity, friendship, attraction, romantic interlude. Aquarius confides secrets to Capricorn, makes money with Pisces, love to Gemini, signs agreements with Leo, advances career with Scorpio. Aquarian friend of astrology: Kim Novak. Aquarian who knows astrology is on target: Tommy Smothers. In November, many Aquarians — especially those born between four and six in the morning — get career boost, gain added recognition and make room for themselves at more elevated positions.

☆ ☆ ☆

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Protect valuables. Discuss new accounting, saving procedures. Leo, Aquarius individuals figure in picture. Accent on payments, collections, status of partnership or marriage. Element of surprise is present.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lunar cycle is such that restrictions are lifted. You receive legal green light. One close to you finds you exciting, says so and admits past mistake. Follow through on hunch — teach and learn. Fresh start proves invigorating.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Highlight curiosity, versatility. Diversify. Accent unique ways of performing services, getting job done. Sagittarian is in picture. You gain access to information previously marked "confidential." Gain overall view — skip petty details, differences.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent on excitement of discovery, romance, variety. You can tear down for purpose of rebuilding — member of opposite sex inspires, encourages and could grant material support. Aquarian is very much in picture.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Ask questions, piece together clues — you can come up with valid conclusions. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius persons play key roles. What was an obstacle is shaken loose. Stick to number "5."

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Cut through red tape, confusion. Be perceptive — dig deep, discover what has been hidden. You could have "occult" experience. Emotional or legal tie is emphasized. Yes, money is involved. You'll discover where you stand.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Study Libra message. Stick to number "8." You could receive publicity, acclaim. One who understand the media is on your side. You get news from experienced individual who is willing to share. Yes, gains are made. You feel stronger — and more financially secure.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Distribution problem is solved. You are in "communication." Competitive spirit is sparked — you get display space, your talents are recognized, views are vindicated. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Yes, hard work does pay off in this instance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Strive for fresh start. Be original, independent. Avoid lifting heavy objects. Personal magnetism flows — you attract favorable attention. One who can aid in fulfilling desires decides you might be worthy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be aware of fine print, details — go slow, be thorough. Accent on property, building for security, becoming more alert to potential. Restriction is temporary. You have chance to get second wind. Stick to number "4."

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Confusion might exist with regard to instructions, directions, traffic. Social activity accelerates. You could be life of party. Key is to have sense of humor regarding statements, promises — especially where opposite sex is concerned.

IF SEPTEMBER 30TH IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are versatile, artistic, flexible, capable of writing, reporting, asking pertinent — and embarrassing — questions. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. August proved most significant — in October, you make new start, meet fascinating people and vitality makes resounding comeback.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Stock prices advance

Dow Ind. +5.37

New York (AP) — A favorable turn in government statistics on the economic outlook sparked an upswing in stock prices Thursday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which started the day at a 21½-month low, picked up 5.37 to 840.09.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about a 7-4 margin on the New York Stock Exchange, and the exchange's composite index added .30 to 52.44.

The market began moving ahead at the outset when the Commerce Department reported that the index of leading economic indicators rose 0.8 per cent in August. The department also revised the July reading for the index from a 0.2 per cent decline to a 0.2 rise.

That in effect nullified the warning signal that had been sounded by the index with a string of three consecutive declines from May through July.

Analysts said the rally also might have been aided by anticipation of a $1.1 billion decline in the basic measure of the money supply reported by the Federal Reserve at the NYSE close.

That drop still left monetary growth running ahead of the Fed's targets for the latest four weeks.

But brokers said the downturn still might be taken by traders as a favorable sign in the central bank's effort to reduce inflationary pressures.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials tacked on .61 to 105.49, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up .54 at 95.85.

Savin Business Machines tumbled 7¼ to 39⅝ as of the 4 p.m. close of the NYSE. The company attributed the selling pressure mainly to reports that its Japanese supplier of plain paper copiers might be planning to compete itself in the U.S. market.

Miles Laboratories, which jumped more than 12 points Wednesday, fell back 1¾ to 40¼ on reports that antitrust officials were expected to take a close look at Bayer AG's plan to offer to acquire the company.

Miles said that if such an inquiry were under way it would be premature.

UAL, which reported sharply higher earnings for the first eight months of the year, gained ¾ to 20.

Saga Corp., recommended by a brokerage house at a Wednesday evening seminar for investors in New York, rose ⅝ to 12¼.

Actively traded American Stock Exchange issues included Houston Oil & Minerals, down 1 at 33⅜, and Syntex, up ⅝ at 18⅝.

Gasohol gets federal push

Associated Press

A major federal push for gasohol development began Thursday when President Carter signed the 1977 farm bill into law, U.S. Sen. Carl Curtis said.

The Nebraska Republican said the bill includes his amendment authorizing $60 million in loan guarantees to build four gasohol pilot projects and an additional $24 million for research grants to colleges and universities to further examine the gasohol potential.

"The second stage of the gasohol push has been set in the Senate Finance Committee which last week approved Curtis' proposal to exempt gasohol from the four-cents-a-gallon federal excise tax on gasoline," a Curtis spokesman said from Washington.

Gasohol is a blend of 90% gasoline and 10% alcohol.

Agriculturally produced gasohol would be exempt from the entire excise tax, while gasohol made from coal would receive a one-cent exemption.

"This is intended to help gasohol compete in price with standard motor fuel during the first years of production," Curtis said.

"If the Congress approves this measure, gasohol will have a chance to prove itself in the American market place as a viable alternative to gasoline," Curtis said.

Omaha accepts funds for airport

Omaha (UPI) — The Omaha Airport Authority has accepted $1.3 million in federal funds and another $100,000 from the state toward building a new general aviation complex on the east side of Eppley Airfield.

Ronald Grear, authority executive director, said general aviation operations account for 70 to 75% of airport traffic and said the construction project would be like "putting in a subdivision."

At present, Grear said the operations were concentrated in six buildings which need to be replaced in the congested southwest part of the field.

Grear said ground work for the east side development was estimated to cost $2.8 million and a contract may be awarded in November.

Grear said he didn't expect the east side project to become fully functional for four or five years.

Barrow, gilt trade slow; prices down

Omaha (AP) — Barrows and gilts were off 25 to 50 cents in rather slow trade on the Omaha Livestock Market Thursday. Tickets were 75 cents lower in some instances on limited receipts tipping the scale at more than 260 pounds.

With 3,500 hogs on offer, 44 head U.S. 1-2s weighing 225-233 pounds brought $42.25. U.S. 1-3s weighing 200-250 pounds rang up $41.50-$42.00, with the bulk going out at $41.75-$42.00. Some uneven weights sold at $41.25-$41.75. U.S. 1-3s weighing 250-260 pounds brought $41.00-$41.50, with some near 250 pounds selling at $41.75.

Sows under 500 pounds sold 25 to 75 cents, instances $1.00 lower, while those over 500 pounds were steady to 50 cents lower. Sows weighing 300-600 pounds brought $36.50-$37.25.

With only 400 cattle and calves on offer, there weren't enough slaughter steers and heifers to afford a market test.

A few heifers sold steady, while a small supply of cows was firm.

There were no sheep on offer.

Soybean, corn futures surge

Chicago (AP) — Soybean and corn futures prices, boosted by wet weather and the outlook for above-normal precipitation in October, surged Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Soybeans, climbing steadily throughout the session, rose 16 cents, while corn advanced more than three cents a bushel. Wheat and oats, benefiting from the strength in other pits, finished more than a cent higher.

States ignore law

Washington (UPI) — Senate hearings have shown that many states are still locking up runaways and other non-criminal youths with hardened criminals despite a 1974 law intended to end the practice, Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa, said.

Federal bail-out upsets officials

Crystal City, Tex. (UPI) — The use of more than $200,000 in federal funds to bail out a South Texas city that would not pay its gas bill has upset officials in other cities that also found themselves facing unforeseen gas price hikes.

But Crystal City Mayor Francisco Benavides, a migrant worker like many other workers, says he still thinks his impoverished town of 8,000 is justified in accepting federal aid to get the gas supplies restored and buy electric appliances for its residents in the meantime.

"They give a lot of foreign aid to places like Israel. At least now it will stay in the country," he said.

Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. shut down Crystal City's gas supply after the courts ended a 30-month dispute ruling that Lo-Vaca had the right to shut off the valves for non-payment of past bills totaling $800,000.

The unpaid bills were amassed as Lo-Vaca tried to pass through to the city-owned gas utility increased costs of gas production, with the approval of the Texas Railroad Commission. In three years, the rates went from 36 cents to $2 per thousand cubic feet, but the city insisted on paying only at the old rate.

The surrounding towns of Uvalde, Del Rio and Carrizo Springs also had refused to pay the higher rates but had placed the disputed funds in escrow. Carrizo Springs paid its bill after the Friday shutdown.

Don Newquist, Lo-Vaca vice president, said Uvalde and Del Rio will have to be included in any negotiations with the Community Services Administration to settle Crystal City's debt.

Uvalde City Mgr. Jack Caffall believes his town should also be considered for federal aid but he doesn't think using the aide for paying the gas bills.

"It's an extremely unwise decision. It's just politicans bailing out the local politicians who should have reaped the rewards of their actions and been voted out," Caffall said.

Uvalde has about $980,000 in escrow.

CSA officials have said about $150,000 will be made available to help Crystal City residents buy small electric appliances and $160,000 will be used to make a down payment on the overdue bill.

Del Rio City Mgr. James A. Hester said:

"I have no argument with the attempt to help them buy stoves. But I don't see how it's reasonable for the federal government to pay their bill, to reward them for mismanagement," he said.

NPPD board approves $40 million credit line

Columbus (UPI) — The establishment of a $40 million line of credit to borrow money to pay operating expenses of the Nebraska Public Power District was authorized Thursday by the NPPD board of directors.

If the Lincoln Electric System would pay its overdue power bills, it would not be necessary to borrow the money, NPPD Assistant General Manager Ted Kyster told the board.

The $40 million line of credit was established with Continental Illinois Bank of Chicago. Money borrowed will be at a floating interest rate based on 57% of the bank's prime rate. At the current prime rate, the interest of borrowings would be 4.13%.

Under the terms of agreement, the amount of money NPPD may borrow is limited to the amount LES withholds on NPPD wholesale power bills. Should LES pay its overdue bills, NPPD must use the money to repay whatever it has borrowed from the Illinois bank.

NPPD officials said LES has withheld payment of about $24 million. Kyster said the power district sometime next week will borrow about $20 million to pay operating costs.

Kyster said the electric company's refusal to pay its power bills in full has caused a serious cash flow problem for the power district.

In a related development, Columbus Sen. Donald Dworak told some of his constituents there may be a way to help solve the longstanding rate dispute between LES and NPPD.

Some rural power agencies have sent letters to their customers asking them to complain to their state senators that the LES-NPPD rate dispute will result in higher electric rates for some customers in 1978-79.

However, Dworak told his constituents the rate dispute should be kept in perspective.

He gave the example that while LES has withheld payment of some $24 million, it only amounts to about $5 million or $6 million a year. That, he said, is only 2 or 3% of NPPD's annual revenues of about $170 million.

Creating a rate-setting regulatory body might be a solution for the rate dispute, Dworak said. He added, however, that this would be just another layer of bureaucracy without any guarantee of success.

Dworak also said merging utilities might be a solution and cited as an example the Loup River Public Power District and Cornhusker Public Power District, which serves the same four-county area around Columbus.

Reactor shut down to refuel

Omaha (UPI) — The Omaha Public Power District said its Fort Calhoun power plant was taken out of service Thursday to begin the two-month job of refueling the nuclear reactor.

The refueling involves removal of 52 of the 133 fuel bundles in the reactor core. The spent fuel will be replaced by 36 new bundles and 16 bundles which had previously been in the reactor, but still contain usable uranium, OPPD said.

The remaining fuel assemblies will be shifted throughout the reactor to ensure the most efficient use of the fuel, the district said.

Since OPPD depends on the Fort Calhoun station to supply much of the district's power, refueling outages are scheduled during cool weather when use of electricity is down.

The district said while the Fort Calhoun plant is out of service, electricity will be generated at the North Omaha station.

Power will also be purchased from the Bureau of Reclamation and various other utilities, and petroleum-fueled generation is available at the Jones Street and Sarpy County stations in case of an emergency, OPPD said.

Omaha integration case written arguments ready

Omaha (AP) — Written arguments have been completed in the latest Omaha School District appeal of court-ordered racial integration.

The U.S. Supreme Court in June vacated and remanded the finding of the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in the case. A Circuit Court hearing is scheduled at St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 12.

The U.S. Justice Department contended the Supreme Court meant for the Circuit Court to "examine the fit between the violation and the remedy" ordered earlier.

That means whether the integration plan under way in the district properly corrects the racial segregation created by alleged action of the school board. Under such thinking, the previous ruling that the school district had discriminated against black students would not be changed.

However, in a reply made public to school board members Wednesday, the board's attorneys said the Supreme Court ruling goes farther than that.

They wrote that the later principles set by the Supreme Court are "in sharp contrast" to the Circuit Court's ruling in the Omaha case.

The attorneys argued the main contrast is the method of proving that the racial segregation in the district was intentional, and thus subject to correction by the courts.

Another issue in the written arguments is how extensive the integration program must be.

The Justice Department argues that school board actions changed the district from a "relatively integrated school system" in 1950 to a "highly segregated school system" 20 years later.

The Justice Department said such a change requires system-wide integration.

The school board attorneys argued Wednesday that it is up to the U.S. District Court, which ruled in the school board's favor originally, to decide how much segregation was caused by school board actions.

The attorneys argued if the Circuit Court repeats its ruling that the school district intentionally caused segregation, it should let the District Court determine the penalty.

If that happened, the case would return to the District Court in Omaha for a review of integration and Supreme Court opinions since the plan took effect in 1975.

School board attorneys argued the courts should reduce the extent of the plan because segregation caused by official school actions was "negligible."

FBI seeks alleged kidnapers

A search by the FBI is continuing for two men who allegedly kidnaped 24-year-old Carrie Uhrmacher of Hastings at a Lincoln phone booth Sept. 18.

Bill Kell, assistant agent in charge of the Omaha FBI office said FBI artists are drawing sketches of the two men for circulation in the Lincoln, Omaha and San Francisco areas.

"We don't know how long the men may have been in the Lincoln area, but circulation of the sketches may help us obtain some leads," Kell said.

Miss Uhrmacher, who told the FBI she escaped from her abductors in a skidrow section of San Francisco early Tuesday, described the men as being in their late 20's. One was heavy set, had red curly hair and sideburns, was about 5'11" tall and weighed 220 lbs.

The other had brown, shoulder-length hair, weighed about 150 lbs. and wore thick, plastic-framed glasses, she said.

Gates open for GOP hopefuls

Associated Press

The announcement by Rep. Charles Thone that he has narrowed his sights to the governor's mansion has opened the political gates for other Republican hopefuls.

One of them is State Sen. Douglas Bereuter of Utica who plans to run for Thone's seat in the 1st District. The 37-year-old Bereuter, in his first Unicameral term, said Thursday he will announce his plans officially in early October, but in the meantime also is considering a less likely bid for the seat of retiring Senator Carl Curtis.

Bereuter said he is qualified for either job and said there are several congressmen who have a lot less experience and are a lot younger than he.

Bereuter, a development consultant in private life, represents the 24th Legislative district representing Seward, Polk and York counties.

Proposed living rules criticized

United Press International

The Nebraska Civil Liberties Union contends a proposed Omaha city ordinance restricting large groups from living together in single-family neighborhoods is deiscriminatory.

Barbara Gaither, NCLU executive secretary, said Wednesday the NCLU may file a lawsuit if the city council approved the proposal. The council has postponed a decision on the ordinance at least until Oct. 11.

"The NCLU stands ready to pursue a legal challenge to zoning restrictions such as those currently proposed in Omaha," Ms. Gaither said.

The ordinance is backed by neighborhood groups who contend large numbers of persons living in homes create parking, noise, maintenance and litter problems.

Ms. Gaither said zoning cannot conflict with the opportunity for low and moderate income persons to secure housing.

Education sorority picks officers

Jean Bowman was elected president of the Lincoln Council of Kappa Kappa Iota education sorority.

Other new council officers are Vlasta Woods, vice president, Inez Hahne, secretary and Mearle Rush, treasurer.

'I don't need any help'

Putting on its most ferocious snarl, this tabby marooned on a tree limb in Wood River, Ill., seems more upset by a would-be rescuer than by its predicament. Left alone, the cat eventually made it back down to earth on its own.

Sen. Fowler to receive NCLU libertarian award

State Sen. Steve Fowler, of Lincoln, will receive the Nebraska Civil Liberties Union 1977 "Civil Libertarian of the Year" award at the NCLU annual meeting on Oct. 8.

Cited by the NCLU as strong civil liberties areas of support by Fowler are women's rights, prisoners' rights, and drug law enforcement. Generlly, the NCLU believes Fowler's actions have been favorable on overall civil liberties issues.

Guest speaker for the affair will be Congressman John J. Cavanaugh. Cavanaugh will discuss national issues of civil liberties concern.

Reservations for the dinner meeting may be made by contacting the NCLU office, 1030 "Q." The meeting is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. at The Villager.

President directs ag chief to meet with Rep. Smith

Omaha (AP) — Congresswoman Virginia Smith said her meeting with President Carter Thursday was Cordial. However, she said she did not get answers to her questions.

"The President directed the Secretary of Agriculture to meet with me before the end of the week and discuss my questions," she said.

Her main question to the President was why has it taken so long to get specifics on the various agricultural programs contained in the farm bill.

Ag support urged

St. Louis (AP) — American consumers are the main beneficiaries of American agricultural research and should continue their strong support of such development, according to Duane Acker, president of Kansas State University.

105 In Memoriams

In memory of our dear husband, brother & uncle, Gilbert White who passed away three years ago today.
You wished no one a last farewell, or even said goodbye.
You were gone before we knew it and only god knows why.
God broke our hearts to prove to us he only takes the best.
To some you are forgotten to others a part of the past.
But to us who loved & lost you, your memory will forever last.
